Message from the Dean

In my role as dean, I am in the position of being first in line to sing our school's praises. I never lack for material, particularly in light of the wonderful things our students do in and for the community every day. In this issue of The McKinney Lawyer, you'll find a story that highlights some of those impressive activities.

For example, through our student wellness initiative, the Student Bar Association and the Office of Student Affairs put together a team to run a 5k race as part of the Indianapolis Monumental Marathon on November 7. IU McKinney fielded a team of 45 people, including students, their children, and law school staff members. The race is a fundraiser for Indianapolis Public School Charities.

Our students also continue their work with the Indiana University Student Outreach Clinic, which operates every Saturday from the Neighborhood Fellowship Church on the Indianapolis east side. The Health Law Society annually make a sizeable donation toward the clinic's efforts, and our law students continue to volunteer to help connect the neighborhood's residents with the legal help they need.

In addition to learning about our students' service, this issue of the magazine will introduce you to alumni who have pursued careers in higher education. The legal education we offer here is first rate, and that is demonstrated by the number of our alumni who have gone on to pursue careers as scholars and university leaders, educating future generations.

Finally, this issue contains our Dean's Report, detailing your generous contributions made during the last year. We couldn't do the work of the law school without your continued support, and for that I am grateful. I wish you all a happy, healthy, and prosperous New Year!

Professor Roisman is Award Recipient

Florence Wagman Roisman received the Elizabeth Hurlock Beckman Award at a ceremony in Atlanta on November 14. She was one of only 10 professors from around the country who were honored with a $25,000 cash tribute from the Beckman Award Trust.

"I'm very honored by this award, and am deeply grateful to Emily Benfer, '05, and her former student, Graham Bowman, for nominating me for it," Professor Roisman said.

"I can think of no one more deserving of the prestigious Beckman Award," said Professor Emily Benfer, clinical professor of law and director of the Health Justice Project at the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy and the Loyola University Chicago School of Law. "Professor Roisman is an extraordinary teacher and mentor, a pioneer in the law, and a champion of civil and human rights."

"I couldn't be happier for my colleague, Professor Roisman, to be honored in this way," said IU McKinney Dean Andrew R. Klein. "She is truly an inspiration to her students."

Professor Roisman also was honored with the David B. Bryson Award from the National Housing Law Project and the Housing Justice Network. The award was presented on December 11 during the group's annual meeting in Oakland, California. The award is for "lifelong dedication and exceptional success in improving housing conditions for people in need."

Lawrence, Indiana, Names Street for General Buskirk, '75

A street in Lawrence has been named for retired Major General George Buskirk, '75. The street is located in a new neighborhood being created on a large plat of land at the former Fort Benjamin Harrison. The street was named "Buskirk Drive" during a ceremony on September 29 in Lawrence.

Buskirk was in the Reserve Officer's Training Corp as an undergraduate student at Butler University, and then came to IU McKinney for law school where he was part of the evening division. He joined the National Guard in 1977, and served in the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General Corps. Appointed adjutant general of the State of Indiana by then-Governor Frank O'Bannon in 2001, Buskirk served until 2004.

"I'm so pleased to be recognized in this way by a great number of men that I served with," Buskirk said. "I was thrilled to be called. It was a complete surprise. It's a great honor to have been thought of so favorably; I spent the better part of 35 years in service."

Scott Chinn, '94, To Receive Hine Medal

Scott Chinn, '94, a partner at Faegre Baker Daniels' Indianapolis office, will receive the Maynard K. Hine Medal for service to the IUPUI campus. The medal honors alumni who make significant contributions to the campus and its alumni programs. He will receive the medal on February 25 at the annual Alumni Leaders' Dinner.

Chinn has been a part of the IU McKinney Alumni Association board since 2007, serving as secretary from 2011 to 2015, and now as vice president. Chinn is chair of the board's alumni engagement committee—focusing specifically on ramping up connections between alumni and students. He's consistently involved in the Operation L.A.W.S. mock interview program and also hosts roundtable discussions at student orientation. Chinn serves as a volunteer chair for the McKinney Law Firm and Corporate Campaign at his firm.

The Alumni Leaders' Dinner will be held February 25, 2016, at the NCAA Headquarters at 700 W. Washington St. A reception will begin at 6:30, followed by the dinner and program at 7:15. Tables of 10 are available for $500. To learn more, contact Ryan McIlrath of the IUPUI Office of Alumni Relations at 317-274-5063 or rmcilrat@iupui.edu

The medal, first awarded in 1974, is named for IUPUI's first chancellor, Maynard K. Hine, who believed in the power of a strong alumni program.

Professor Schumm Honored by Bar Association

Professor Joel Schumm, '98, was honored with the Indianapolis Bar Association's President's Medal for Service to the Profession, for his work with the Indiana Appellate Institute, created by the IndyBar Appellate Practice Section.

"It's wonderful to see Professor Schumm receive recognition from his peers for the excellent work he does every day," said IU McKinney Dean Andrew R. Klein. "Not only is Joel a tremendous appellate advocate in his own right, but he is also a superb educator who is dedicated to our students and the best in legal education."

The institute was created in 2010 as a resource for lawyers throughout the state who have oral arguments scheduled before the Indiana Supreme Court or the Indiana Court of Appeals. Modeled after the Supreme Court Institute at Georgetown Law School, the institute offers "moot" or practice argument sessions before panels of seasoned appellate advocates.

Professor Schumm received the award from Indianapolis Bar Association president John Trimble, '81, at a ceremony on November 18.

IU McKinney Law Dean Emeritus Gary Roberts Tapped to Lead Bradley University

The Bradley University Board of Trustees announced in October that Bradley alumnus and former IU McKinney Law Dean Gary R. Roberts would become the 11th president of the University, effective January 1, 2016.

Doug Stewart, Chairman of the Bradley Board of Trustees, said, "Gary is a forward-thinking, innovative and proven leader, who understands Bradley from the inside out. He has extensive experience that makes him uniquely qualified to take on the challenge of moving Bradley forward."

Roberts received a B.A. degree in economics from Bradley in 1970. He received his J.D. in 1975 from Stanford University, and is considered one of the foremost sports law experts in the country.

"This is an amazing thing for me—to return as president to the University where my adult life and career began a half-century ago," Roberts said. "But I will be sad to leave the McKinney School and the Indianapolis community where over the past eight-and-a-half years I have made so many friends, worked with so many wonderful colleagues, and have made so many wonderful memories. I would not leave if it were not for such a remarkably unique opportunity."

"Gary did an outstanding job as our dean and helped move the law school forward," says current McKinney Law Dean Andrew R. Klein. "We are proud of him and wish him all the best in his new position."

IU McKinney Student Maggie Little Honored by the IBA

IU McKinney 3L Maggie Little was honored for her pro bono work as a law student during the Indianapolis Bar Association's Recognition Breakfast on November 18.

"I am extremely honored to have been nominated and selected to represent McKinney with this award," Little said. "There are so many deserving students who devote much of their free time to pro bono activities at McKinney so I am very grateful to have been chosen for this award."

During her law school career, Little has contributed approximately 500 hours of pro bono service. She contributed 405 hours as a volunteer legal intern for the MESH Coalition, a non-profit that provides emergency preparedness services for hospitals and healthcare organizations in Indiana. She also has contributed over 100 pro bono hours with the IU Student Outreach Clinic, and is now Chair of Legal Services for that group.

LaWanda Ward, '03, director of the law school's Pro Bono Program and Public Interest, nominated Little for the honor. In addition to being a pro bono powerhouse, Little is in the top 20 percent of her class and is a member of the INDIANA HEALTH LAW REVIEW staff.

Student Organizations

Benefit Members, Make Positive Contributions to Community

by Rebecca Trimpe

Student organizations at IU McKinney are about more than simply connecting students with a particular legal or civic interest. The groups are a means through which like-minded people can gather to work toward a common goal or further a particular cause.

In a sense, student organizations create smaller communities within the law school and make it possible for McKinney students to leave a significant positive mark on the community at large.

Not long after the Fall semester begins, students take part in the annual Student Organization Fair, most recently held September 2, 2015, in the atrium at Inlow Hall. During the event, students can talk with their peers about the more than 30 student organizations at IU McKinney. The atmosphere is jovial and high-energy, with students from each organization taking a turn at the podium microphone and offering a quick sales pitch about their group and why others should join.

One of those groups is Women's Caucus. Entering its 39th year, the group's annual auction is one of the most anticipated and well-supported events hosted by a student organization at the law school. Traditionally held in late winter, the festivities begin with a silent auction while guests enjoy drinks and hors d'oeuvres, and later ramps up with a live auction with faculty serving as auctioneers. The antics of the students, faculty, and staff add to the fun of the event. For example, after "winning" the largest number of votes at the 2014 Barrister's Ball, Professor Michael Pitts had the honor of auctioning off the first item of that year's auction while wearing a pink rabbit suit scarily similar to the one worn by the character, Ralphie, in the holiday movie, "A Christmas Story." McKinney student Evan Norris surprised the 2015 auction crowd by bounding out of the library to the front of the stage in the atrium and recreating Katy Perry's Super Bowl halftime show as "left shark," who was particularly memorable for his dance moves. Many members of the McKinney faculty and staff donate prizes for both the live and silent auction. The group raised $8,729 to benefit Hoosier Burn Camp in 2013, $18,530 to support the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Central Indiana in 2014, and $15,563 for Project Home Indy in 2015.

Giving back to the larger community is very often a theme with student organizations. Combining that desire with a goal for fitness proved to be a sweet spot for the Student Bar Association in Fall 2015. The Indianapolis Monumental Marathon offered three races on the first Saturday in November: a marathon, a half-marathon and a 5k. The non-profit group sponsoring the marathon has donated more than $675,000 to Indianapolis Public School charities and aims to teach the city's children about the benefits of exercise, proper diet, and healthy living. SBA president Scott Oliver, a McKinney 3L, and Assistant Dean Johnny Pryor from Student Affairs decided to put a team together for the Monumental 5k. Expecting a dozen or so students to respond to participate, Dean Pryor was astonished when 40 students, many of whom had never before run a race of any kind, signed up and paid the entry fee to be on the team. A total of 45 people from the IU McKinney family took part, including two children of students and three staff members from the law school.

Student Organization Award Winners

Shown here are Fernanda Beraldi, LL.M. '15; Evan Norris, and Young Cho.* (3) The Women's Caucus received the award for Service Project of the year for its annual auction. Proceeds went to Project Home Indy. From left are law students Ellen Pactor, Sarah Hurdle and Jordan Slusher, along with Lakshmi Hasanadka from Project Home Indy. (4) Adriana Figueroa presents the Outstanding Student Leader of the Year Award to Young Cho. (5) Assistant Dean for Student Affairs, Johnny Pryor, presents the Student Organization of the Year Award to Alessa Quinones from the Health Law Society.

"People are already talking about next year," Dean Pryor said. He believes that the response to the desire to put a team together was received so well because the request came from a fellow student.

"We are incredibly happy to see IU McKinney students willing to get involved and work toward a healthy goal," Oliver said.

McKinney students take an active role in the work of the IU Student Outreach Clinic (SOC). Through the law school's "Student Outreach Clinic," law students help the residents of the Indianapolis eastside via the free clinic operated through the Neighborhood Fellowship Church. The SOC provides medical and dental services, physical and occupational therapy, social work services, and prescription drug help to the underserved neighborhood. Law students partner with attorneys from Indiana Legal Services to provide free legal help to the residents. The Health Law Society is a big supporter of this effort, and routinely makes a monetary donation to the clinic to fund its work. This year, the society donated $650 to the clinic from the proceeds from its Professional School Mixers.

On Sunday, November 15, the IU McKinney Black Law Students Association hosted a holiday party for formerly incarcerated persons and their families. The "New Beginnings" party included the work of McKinney law students who enthusiastically volunteered to set-up, wrap presents, serve food, and assist with arts and crafts. Indianapolis community members attended the event and received food, drink, and a gift for their child or children. BLSA's community service chair, Mariah McGhee, discussed the importance of the event, saying "Reentry is huge, especially in the African-American community, and as a black law student association, it's very important for us to take an active role in the movement."

The work done by all of the school's students through these organizations is recognized each spring at an awards program in the atrium. For the 2014-2015 academic year, the Islamic Law Association was designated as the best new student organization; the International Law Society and the Master of Laws Association were honored for the best collaboration for their peer mentoring program; Women's Caucus received the award for best service project for the annual auction; Associate Director of Graduate Programs Perfecto 'Boyet' Caparas, LL.M. '05, was named the outstanding advisor of the year for his work with the Islamic Law Association; Young Cho, '15, was named student leader of the year; and the Health Law Society was named student organization of the year.

McKinney students' work, both within the law school's student organizations and in the community, also has been honored at the university level with the William M. Plater Civic Engagement Medallion. The award honors graduating students who have excelled in their commitment to the community through service learning, volunteerism, community and social issue advocacy, community work-study, and political engagement. Tarah Baldwin, Jerad Childress, Lela Rae, and Jason Sprinkle, all 2015 McKinney graduates, received the medallion at an awards ceremony in April 2015.

"For me, it is selfish to obtain an education worth over six figures and to not use it to help those around you in some capacity," Baldwin said. "McKinney and IUPUI provide so many opportunities for students to engage with the community and to make a difference with the knowledge that they are gaining in school." ❖

IU McKinney's Family Law Society
Event Raises $4,024 for Charities

Members of IU McKinney's Family Law Society held their inaugural Teal Tie fundraising dinner to promote awareness of sexual abuse on March 28 in the atrium at Inlow Hall. The color teal is the official color of Sexual Assault Awareness Month, which is marked each April in the United States.

The group raised $4,024, and divided the funds evenly between Prevent Child Abuse Indiana, which seeks to increase awareness of the problem and inform communities about solutions, while serving as a resource for families, individuals and organizations; and Family Works, Inc., a private, mid-sized, community based group that offers counseling and support services to children and families. ❖

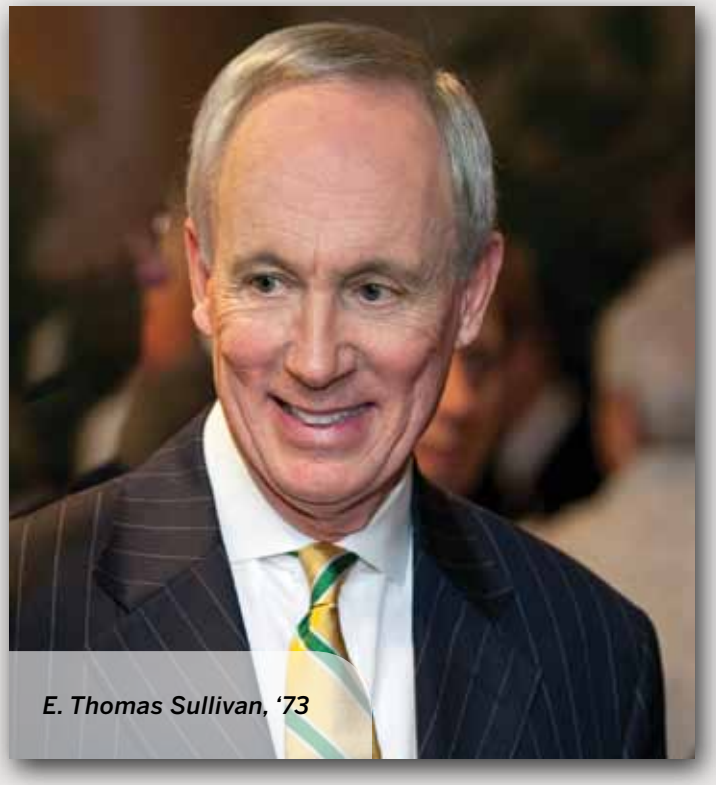
ALTERNATIVE CAREERS

This is the fifth in a series of articles about IU McKinney Lawyers who have taken "the road less travelled" in terms of their career paths. In this issue, we introduce you to individuals who use their legal expertise in the classroom and in higher education administration.

Alumni Heed the Call to Higher Education

by Alicia Dean Carlson



E. Thomas Sullivan, '73

E. Thomas Sullivan, '73

President

The University of Vermont

After more than 26 years in higher education leadership, E. Thomas Sullivan still expects the "unexpected."

"It turns out that almost every day an issue arises and you can hear this constant refrain, 'Where did that come from?' It's amazing the issues that come up," Sullivan says.

It is a job that Sullivan can't imagine doing without his legal background. "I simply use my law degree every single day," he says. "I would not trade my legal education or my law school experience at Indiana".

Sullivan became the 26th president of The University of Vermont in July 2012. He came to the post after having served as senior vice president for academic affairs and provost at the University of Minnesota since 2004 and dean of the University of Minnesota School of Law from 1995 to 2002. Prior to that, Sullivan was dean of the University of Arizona College of Law and an associate dean at Washington University in St. Louis, and served on the faculty at the University of Missouri, Columbia. Sullivan is an authority on antitrust law and complex litigation, authoring 11 books and more than 50 articles.

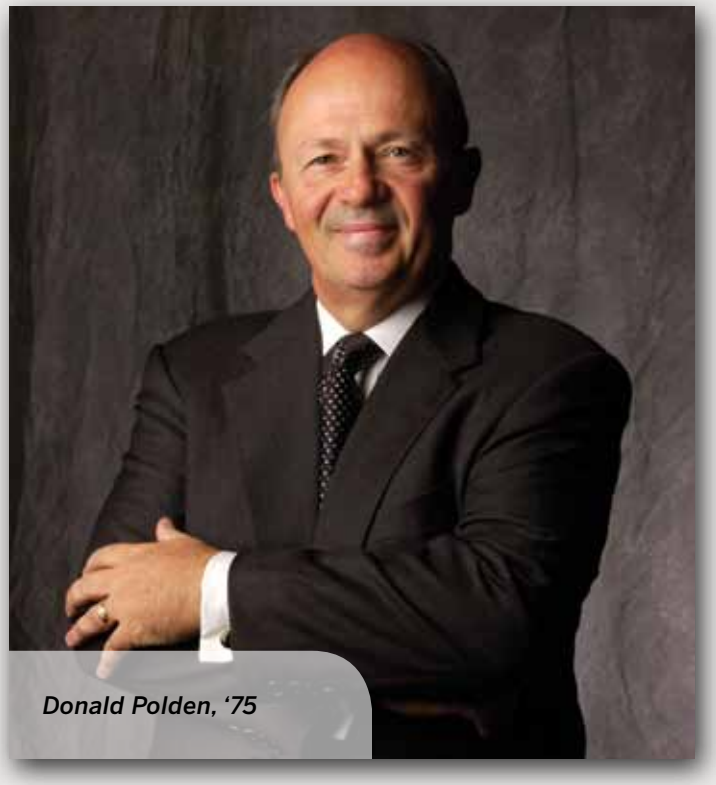
During law school, Sullivan was an editor of the INDIANA LAW REVIEW and interned with William Steckler, chief judge of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana. At graduation, he received the law faculty's Award for the Outstanding Graduate. After graduating magna cum laude, he clerked for a federal judge in Miami, as a trial attorney in the U.S. Department of Justice and as a litigator with a New York and Washington law firm.

As a law student, Sullivan says he saw the appeal of joining a law school faculty. "I thought it would be a rewarding way to make a contribution to teaching, learning, and scholarship," he says. "My observation was it would be a great life."

That power of observation served Sullivan as he navigated his career in higher education.

"I believe strongly in being strategic and working the plan, but my own career didn't happen that way," Sullivan says. "I was the beneficiary of great mentors and advisors who gave me a pathway to think about and observe how to be successful."



Donald Polden, '75

Donald Polden, '75

Dean Emeritus and Professor of Law
Santa Clara Law School

Just a couple of years after he graduated from law school, Donald Polden was recruited to teach at Drake University School of Law.

At the time, he had just finished a federal clerkship, a prestigious position for which the late Professor Bruce Townsend had recommended him, and before that a clerkship on the Indiana Court of Appeals. "I was a little older than my students, and I would have preferred to have a couple more years of experience before becoming a law professor," Polden recalls.

That first teaching job, however, led to a career in higher education that continues today. Polden stayed at Drake until 1993, as professor of law and associate dean. He then served as dean and professor of law at the University of Memphis from 1993 to 2003, when he was named dean of Santa Clara University School of Law, serving until 2013. Polden established his reputation as a scholar in the areas of antitrust law, employment law and legal education, and also practiced law, principally in the areas of federal antitrust law and employment law. He's argued cases in federal appellate courts involving claims of price-fixing and monopolization, and has written books and articles on topics of employment relationships, federal antitrust, securities law and legal education.

At Santa Clara, Polden was instrumental in developing the curriculum for leadership education—a field he continues to teach and consult in—and serves on the advisory board of the Institute of Sports Law and Ethics. He recently began teaching a course in sports law, too.

"One of the great things about higher education is the flexibility to think about what you're doing and how to do it better, and to continue to grow intellectually and professionally," Polden says.

Earning his law degree from IU was "a great experience. I had some very good teachers and mentors," Polden says.

Polden knows how important that can be. Recently a former student left Polden a voicemail message thanking him for convincing her to stay in law school when she was considering quitting. Now a successful attorney, she was grateful for his encouragement.

"When you get those opportunities to help a student, it's very gratifying," Polden says.

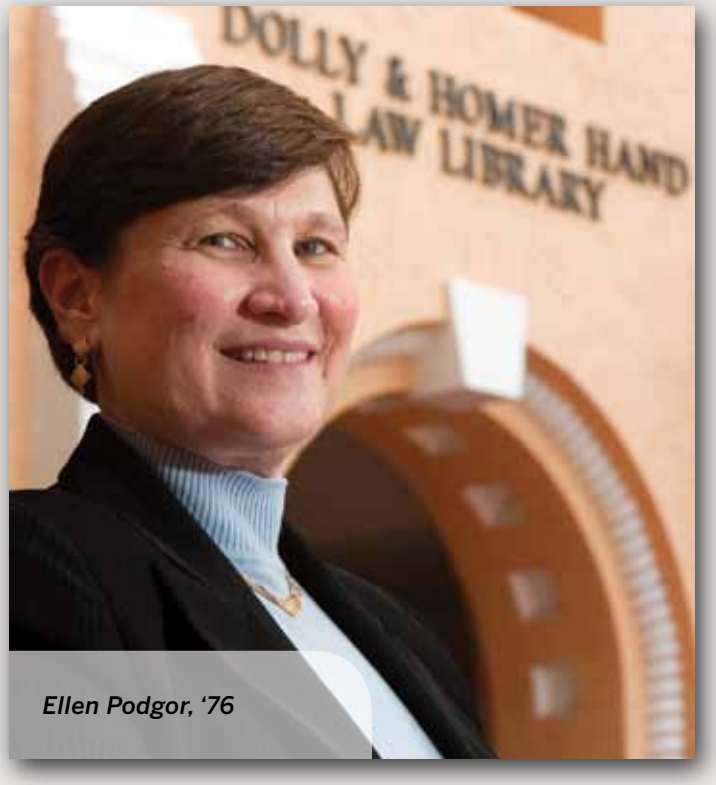
Ellen Podgor, '76

Gary R. Trombley Family White-Collar Crime Research Professor and Professor of Law
Stetson University College of Law

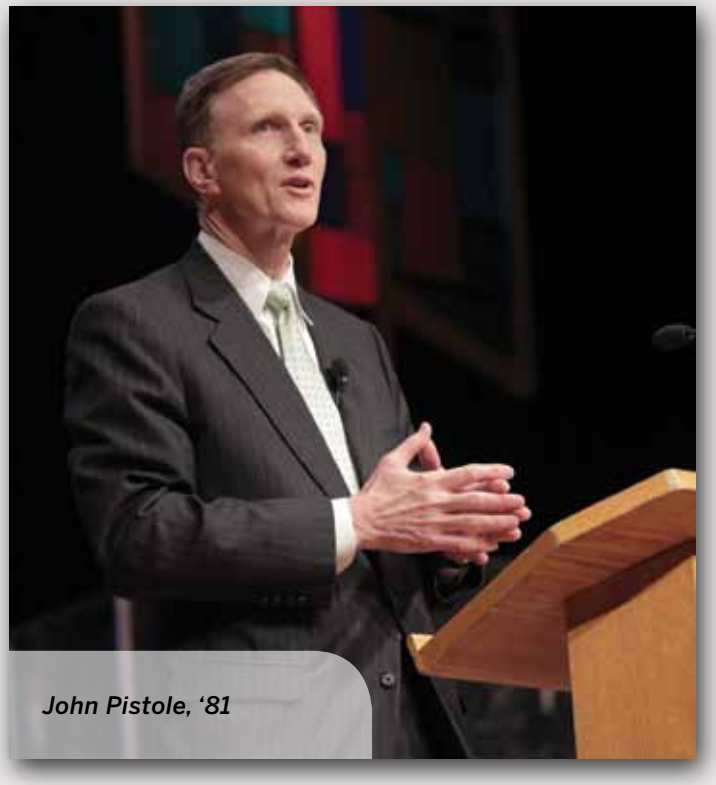
Cleaning out a closet recently, Ellen Podgor found a souvenir from her first year of law school: a poster from her successful campaign for representative of the Student Bar Association.

It was a fun find for Podgor, who says she loves being in law school "on the other side" as faculty.

"It's the best job in all the world," Podgor says. "I love that



Ellen Podgor, '76



John Pistole, '81

I feel like I am making a difference, first with students and, second, with the progression of the law. I do a lot of writing and I enjoy being part of improving our legal landscape."

At Stetson, Podgor teaches in the area of white-collar crime and international criminal law. She is the author of numerous books, more than 70 law review articles and essays. In 2004, Podgor started the White Collar Crime Prof Blog, which has had more than 4 million page views. She has been interviewed on National Public Radio and quoted in newspapers from the New York Times to the Chicago Tribune and Los Angeles Times. She also recently served as president of the Southeastern Association of Law Schools.

After working her way through law school, Podgor, a native of New York, spent a dozen years first as a deputy prosecutor and then as a criminal defense attorney in northern Indiana. She completed an MBA at the University of Chicago, but gravitated toward teaching, believing that her experiences might benefit law students. "I felt like I could make a difference," Podgor says.

Podgor completed an LL.M degree at Temple University and began teaching and writing, first at St. Thomas University College of Law and then at Georgia State University College of Law before joining the Stetson faculty. She has taught at other law schools, too, as a visiting professor at the University of Georgia School of Law and George Washington University Law School.

As someone who has been on both sides—student and professor—Podgor doesn't hesitate when assessing her own legal education. "My alma mater, now that was a school that did a good job," she says. "It was excellent training, a good solid base."

John Pistole, '81

President

Anderson University

When John Pistole took the helm of Anderson University as president in 2015, it was his first foray into higher education administration.

It was also a big career change. Before becoming president of the Christian college with an undergraduate enrollment of nearly 2,800 students, Pistole was administrator of the federal Transportation Safety Administration.

Appointed to the post by President Barack Obama in 2010, Pistole led a 60,000-strong workforce, the security operations of more than 450 U.S. airports, the Federal Air Marshall Service and shared security for highways, railroads, ports, mass transit systems and pipelines.

Prior to his TSA appointment, Pistole was a 26-year veteran of the FBI. After the attacks of September 11, 2001, Pistole was placed in charge of the FBI's counterterrorism program as executive assistant director for national security.

Yet being a college president is "fascinating," Pistole says. "I think especially because I did not come into the job from higher education there is so much to learn and take in. I am loving it."

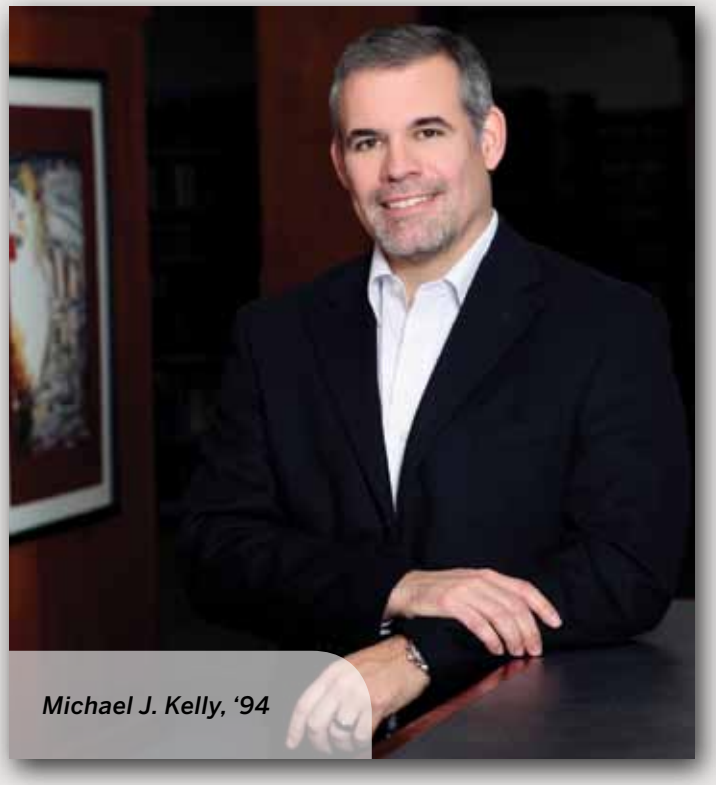
When Pistole was sworn in as president, his law school professor, IUPUI Chancellor Emeritus Gerald L. Bepko, attended the ceremony. Pistole says his law degree has been an asset from the beginning.

"In law school, you learn to spot the issue and argue a point, succinctly and cogently," he says. "An understanding of things like legal precedent doesn't mean you have all the answers, but it does help you know what to look for. And it gives me a confidence that I've benefitted from since I graduated in 1981."

Anderson is familiar territory for Pistole. He grew up less than two blocks from campus, where his father was a theology professor. A 1978 graduate, Pistole was one of four siblings to attend the school and his sister was on the faculty. He met his wife, also an Anderson alumna, as a college freshman, and both sets of their parents were Anderson graduates.

Pistole says that returning to Anderson has given him the "gift of time," a 10-minute commute to campus versus the hour-long daily trek into Washington, D.C. His faith and a spiritual regime of daily scripture, prayer and meditation remains central to his life.

"I've been blessed. I'm an average guy who has been given extraordinary opportunities," he says.



Michael J. Kelly, '94

Michael J. Kelly, '94

Professor of Law, Associate Dean for Faculty Research and Graduate & International Programs
Creighton University School of Law

When Mike Kelly joined the faculty at Creighton University School of Law, there were just three courses offered in international law.

Fifteen years later, the school lists 20 courses in international law, publishes the CREIGHTON INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW JOURNAL, and offers study abroad opportunities.

Kelly shaped the school's international program, in part due to student demand.

"We have a new generation of students who almost all seem to have an interest in international legal issues and an expectation that it will be part of their legal education," he says.

Kelly cultivated an interest in international affairs during his undergraduate years at IU-Bloomington and a year working in London. As a law student, he penned an article for an early issue of the INDIANA INTERNATIONAL & COMPARATIVE LAW REVIEW about a new law called the North American Free Trade Act (NAFTA).

His first job after law school was close to home, at the Indiana Department of Environmental Management in Indianapolis. He then embarked on an LL.M. program at Georgetown University. Kelly taught at Michigan State before making the move to Creighton.

At Creighton, Kelly also directs the GOAL program, a J.D./M.S. joint degree. He is president of the U.S. National Chapter of L'Association International du Droit Pénal, a Paris-based society of international criminal law scholars, judges and attorneys that enjoys consultative status with the United Nations. Kelly is author or co-author of five books and more than 30 articles and has written extensively on Cuba-U.S. relations and a government-funded proposal to settle claims of companies and citizens whose property was confiscated by the Castro regime.

He also consults with the Kurdish Regional Government in Iraq and serves as co-chair of the American Bar Association's Task Force on Internet Governance. But teaching is one of his primary joys and traveling with law students to destinations like The Hague and Nuremburg makes an impact.

"One of my most teachable moments was standing with 30 students in front of ovens at Auschwitz. I never had to say a word, but you could see the impact," Kelly says. "As a law professor, I am the lucky guy who sees that light bulb moment in a student's eyes. My goal every day when I walk into the classroom is to trigger that 'aha' moment with students."

Emily Benfer, '05

Clinical Professor of Law, Director, Health Justice Project
Loyola University Chicago School of Law

For Emily Benfer, teaching as a clinical professor is the best of both worlds.

"In clinical teaching, I have the opportunity to address issues of social justice with the next generation of lawyers, while emphasizing the experiential piece of learning to think like a lawyer in practice," she says. "It can be very powerful."

Benfer founded Loyola's Health Justice Project, an interprofessional, live-client litigation and policy clinic, in 2010. The medical-legal partnership clinic annually serves the 60,000 low-income patients of Erie Family Health Center at 13 locations around Chicago.

After graduating from Providence College and two years in the Peace Corps, Benfer was working as a law clerk at the New Haven Legal Assistance Association Inc. when she applied to the law school based on the reputation of the Program in International Human Rights Law under Professor George Edwards and on the advice of a mentor who knew Professor Florence Wagman Roisman. "I knew early on that I was on the right track," she says.

During law school, she was an editor of the INDIANA INTERNATIONAL & COMPARATIVE LAW REVIEW and president of both the local and national Equal Justice Works. She clerked for Judge David Hamilton, the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and the Indiana Protective Order Pro Bono Project.

After graduation, she became an Equal Justice Works Fellow at the Washington Legal Clinic for the Homeless, a public interest associate working on a class action defending the rights of low-income disabled children, a staff attorney and teaching fellow in the Georgetown University Law Center Federal Legislation and Administrative Clinic.

Benfer credits the support of faculty members like Professor George Wright and former Dean Andy Klein. She was inspired, too, by Professor Mary Mitchell and Professor Lloyd Wilson, and took to heart the quote by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. on a banner in the law school: "The moral arc of the universe is long but it bends toward justice."

Benfer passes on that idealism, as well as a healthy dose of realism, to students. "We must be able to envision a world in which justice, equality and human flourishing exists for everyone," she says. "At the same time, we can't be successful in creating that world if we don't understand the current reality and how we arrived here."

David Nguyen, '06

Assistant Professor of Educational Leadership
University of North Dakota College of Education and Human Development

David Nguyen started college hoping to become a teacher. Now, he's finally back in the classroom.

Bored by the pre-med track he was on at IU-Bloomington as an undergraduate, Nguyen decided to follow his true passion and become a teacher. Along the way toward his degree, he became interested in education policy.

"That's what took me to law school," Nguyen says.

He completed his J.D. with an M.B.A. degree through the law school's joint program with the IU Kelley School of Business and worked as a summer associate at the Indianapolis law firm Krieg DeVault.

Still, he never felt that his career goals quite fit in with either the law school students hoping for a law firm career, or with the M.B.A students pursuing jobs in business.

After completing his JD/MBA, Nguyen was named visiting professor of business ethics at Vietnam National University in Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam, where he developed and taught graduate courses in business ethics for the university's M.B.A. and D.B.A. programs. After graduation, Nguyen applied for and received a Rotary Foundation scholarship to study abroad, earning an LL.M. Adv. degree at Leiden University in the Netherlands. He served as the pro bono director of the American Bar Association's Disaster Legal Services program.

Nguyen practiced law in Indianapolis for two years before returning to IU to earn a Ph.D. in education policy. "I really missed the classroom," Nguyen says. "That's why I went back to earn the Ph.D., so I could teach as a professor on a college campus."

Nguyen is now on the faculty at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. As perhaps the only Vietnamese-speaking attorney in Indiana serving Vietnamese clients, Nguyen still maintains a small practice in Indianapolis.

"Teaching higher education law and higher education management really meshes all three areas I've studied: law, business and education," he says. "It's like I've come full circle."

Xiangshun Ding, LL.M. '06

Professor of Law and Director, Department of Comparative Law and Trilateral Cooperation Studies Center
Renmin University of China Law School
Designated Professor
Nagoya University, Japan

For Xiangshun Ding, legal education has never been confined to his native country of China.

Instead, Professor Ding has spent more than two decades in legal education in China, Japan and the United States to expand understanding of the law across cultures.

Since 1998, he has worked with IU McKinney Law to operate the Chinese Law Summer Program at Renmin University of China Law School, where he is a law professor and director of the Comparative Law Department. He has been a visiting scholar at Waseda University and Ritsumei Kan University, a visiting professor at Nagoya University and Meiji University in Japan, and, in 2012, a Fulbright Visiting Scholar at Harvard University Law School. At Renmin, he teaches a series of foreign and comparative law courses and currently is working to develop a bilingual legal education program for Chinese law students speaking English.

Xiangshun Ding, LL.M. '06

And he's still working on his own understanding: Professor Ding is currently pursuing a doctor of juridical science degree under the supervision of McKinney Professor Lloyd T. (Tom) Wilson. He is developing a dissertation on the comparative studies of the reforms of legal education in East Asia, and was recently invited by the Association of American Law Schools (AALS) to speak on the collaboration between the AALS and the China Legal Education Association.

When Professor Ding graduated from high school, he was chosen—in China's extremely competitive college admission system—to attend Jilin University School of Law. He spent seven years studying there, graduating with a bachelor of laws degree in 1992 and a master of laws degree in 1994. He was a Ph.D. student at Renmin University of China when he met IU McKinney Professor Jeffrey Grove, and the two helped create a joint operating agreement for the Chinese Law Summer Program.

Professor Ding came to Indianapolis, a place he describes as "a small but lovely city," to earn the LL.M. degree.

"After my graduation from Renmin University Law School, I decided to step in on the track of scholarship and conduct comparative law studies, which require me not only to understand U.S. law on paper, but also in practice," he says. "This experience did help with my own understanding of the legal system in the U.S. that really contributes to my current teaching and research at my law school [in China]." ❖

James P. White Lecture Features Chief Justice of Canada

On April 8, the law school hosted the Right Honorable Beverley McLachlin, Chief Justice of Canada, as the featured speaker for the James P. White Lecture on Legal Education. Chief Justice McLachlin spoke on the topic, "Civility in the Age of the Internet."

Chief Justice McLachlin was educated at the University of Alberta, where she received a B.A. (Honors) in Philosophy in 1965. In 1968, she received both an M.A. in Philosophy and an LL.B. from the same institution. She was called to the Alberta Bar in 1969 and to the British Columbia Bar in 1971, and practiced law in Alberta and British Columbia. Beginning in 1974, she taught for seven years in the Faculty of Law at the University of British Columbia as a tenured Associate Professor.

Her judicial career began in April 1981 when she was appointed to the Vancouver County Court. In September 1981, she was appointed to the Supreme Court of British Columbia. She was elevated to the British Columbia Court of Appeal in December 1985 and was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of British Columbia in September 1988. Seven months later, in April 1989, she was sworn in as a Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada. On January 7, 2000, she was appointed Chief Justice of Canada. She is the first woman in Canada to hold this position.

In addition to her judicial duties at the Supreme Court, the Chief Justice chairs the Canadian Judicial Council, the Advisory Council of the Order of Canada and the Board of Governors of the National Judicial Institute.

The James P. White Lecture on Legal Education was created in honor of Professor James White, who retired in 2000 after 26 years as Consultant on Legal Education to the American Bar Association. He continues to serve as Consultant Emeritus. Members of the ABA Section on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar and other friends contributed to the establishment of this annual lecture in recognition of Professor White's outstanding career, both at the ABA and at the IU McKinney School of Law, where he has served on the faculty since 1966. ❖

IU McKinney Students Honored for Pro Bono, Clinical Program Service

Students, faculty, alumni and staff gathered in the Inlow Hall atrium to celebrate the service given by participants in IU McKinney's Pro Bono and Clinical Programs. The reception was held April 21.

Justice Brent Dickson, '68, of the Indiana Supreme Court, presented the keynote address. He spoke about how critical pro bono service is to the smooth operation of the court system, as well as its importance to litigants themselves who otherwise would be represented pro se. The issue of litigants going into court unrepresented is always top of mind when the high court visits trial court judges throughout the state, Justice Dickson said.

IU McKinney graduating students contributed 20,191 hours of pro bono service during their law school careers. A total of 49 students qualified for the Norman Lefstein Award of Excellence. These awards are presented to students who contribute more than 200 hours of pro bono service during their law school careers. Fifteen students received the Mary H. Mitchell Outstanding Service Award at the Silver level (100-199 hours), and eight students earned the Bronze designation (50-99 hours).

"No one would blame law students for not taking part in pro bono service because their lives are so busy," said IU McKinney Dean Andrew Klein. "But that you have chosen to do so anyway reflects well on you."

LaWanda Ward, '03, director of the Pro Bono Program and Public Interest, presented Tarah Baldwin with the John Paul Berlon Award. Baldwin was honored in recognition of the 1,013 hours of pro bono service she contributed throughout her law school career.

Professor Carrie Hagan, director of the Civil Practice Clinic, presented Chris Mueller with the Outstanding Clinic Student award.

Public Interest Recognition Dinner Honors Those Who Help the Underserved

The seventh annual Public Interest Recognition Dinner, sponsored by the IU McKinney School of Law and the student organization, Equal Justice Works, took place on Saturday, April 11 in the atrium at Inlow Hall. The keynote speaker was Norman Metzger, former Executive Director of Indiana Legal Services, Inc. Honorees included Mary L. DePrez, '79, Director and Counsel for Trial Court Technology for the Indiana Supreme Court's Division of State Court Administration; Thomas H. Benner, '06, Human Rights Activist, Amnesty International USA; and Professor Frances L. Watson, '80, Clinical Professor of Law at IU McKinney Law. The dinner co-chairs were Christen M. Christian, '15; Frank A. Rodriguez, Jr., '15, and Megan Smith-Pastrana, 3L.

Mary L. DePrez, '79, oversees all statewide court technology initiatives. Mary joined the Division staff at the Indiana Supreme Court in January, 2005, after more than eight years of service with the Executive Branch. Mary was the first woman elected to the trial court bench in 1991 and presided over Shelby Superior Court No.2 for six years. Prior to her judicial service, she served as a deputy prosecutor in Shelby County. Since joining the Court, Mary has spearheaded the implementation of the Court's multi-million dollar project to equip all Indiana courts with a statewide case management system to manage their caseloads and exchange data with those who need and use court information.

Thomas H. Benner, '06, a 1971 graduate of Gettysburg College, began his career as a financial reporting actuary for life insurance companies in the Baltimore-Washington area and Indiana. In 1987, Benner joined an Amnesty International adoption group in Baltimore, beginning a second career in human rights activism. Over the years he has volunteered for Amnesty in a variety of roles, including Regional Action Network Coordinator for southern South America, National Resolutions Committee member, and Indiana Area Coordinator. In law school, he served as president of the Amnesty chapter, and interned with Indiana Legal Services, Indiana Civil Liberties Union, and the Northern Ireland Council for Ethnic Minorities in Belfast, Ireland. After graduation he opened a practice, where he divides his time between immigration law clients and Amnesty International.

Frances L. Watson, '80, a 1976 graduate of Ball State University, joined the law school in 1990 to assist as a supervisor in the criminal defense clinic. From 1993 to 1995 she served as the first chief public defender of the Marion County Public Defender's Agency, where she was responsible for developing comprehensive office policy. She returned to the law school in 1995. Professor Watson's years in practice have involved work as a deputy state public defender at the trial and appellate levels and representation of the police department and elected officials as an assistant corporation counsel for Indianapolis/Marion County. She is a member of several organizations, including the Federal, Indiana, and Indianapolis Bar Associations and the Board of Directors of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union. She is a master of the American Inns of Court and serves on the Board of the IUPUI Forensic Science Initiative. ❖

Evening of Celebration

Honors Graduates & Alumni

The law school's annual Evening of Celebration took place on May 8 at the Inlow Hall atrium. Distinguished Alumni Awards were presented to Anne Slaughter Andrew, '83, Pamela Carter, '84, and Robert Wagner, '67. The Early Career Achievement Award was presented to Jonathan Burns, '06.

A crowd of students, faculty, and alumni gathered in the Inlow Hall atrium on May 8 to honor graduating students and alumni award recipients. Distinguished Alumni Awards were presented to Anne Slaughter Andrew, '83, Pamela Carter, '84, and Robert Wagner, '67. The Early Career Achievement Award was presented to Jonathan Burns, '06.

Anne Slaughter Andrew, '83, was the first woman to serve as United States Ambassador to Costa Rica, a post she held from 2009 until 2013. After working at law firms in Indianapolis and Washington, D.C., she joined Anson Group LLC, a biotech consulting company, which she co-led until 2007. Andrew formed a strategic consulting company in 2009, New Energy Nexus LLC, and advised companies and entrepreneurs on investments. She is now chairman of TerViva, an Oakland, California-based company she founded with her husband, Joe Andrew, in 2009. In addition, she serves on the boards of Earth University, Ad Astra Rocket Co., and Washington-based Natural Resources Defense Council, an environmental lobbying organization.

Pamela Carter, '84, recently retired from her position as president of Cummins' Distribution Business, has had a career with many notable firsts. She was the first African American woman to hold the position of state Attorney General when she was elected to that post in Indiana in 1993. And during her time at Cummins, she was the first woman to lead one of the company's four major business units. Previously, she served as deputy chief of staff and executive assistant for health policy and human services for former Indiana Governor Evan Bayh. Currently, she serves on the IU McKinney Board of Visitors and was named the Outstanding Alumna of the Year in 2004.

Robert Wagner, '67, is a respected trial lawyer who is known for his commitment to diversity. In the early 1970s, Wagner became part of one of the first racially integrated law firms in the state, and his firm, Lewis Wagner, continues to work toward a more diverse legal profession today. Wagner was recognized for these efforts when he was presented with the Indiana State Bar Association's Rabb Emison Award. He also is known for his work in the greater Indianapolis community. Wagner spearheaded efforts to plant hundreds of trees along West Street, a main corridor to and from the downtown area. Since 1996, Wagner has served as chairperson or vice chairperson of the White River State Park Development Commission and has participated in the continuous development of the park for over 12 years.

Jonathan Burns, '06, was working at Eli Lilly & Company in information technology supporting Lilly Research Labs when he studied for, took, and passed the Patent Bar Exam. He then became a patent agent, and worked at the Indianapolis law firm, Ice Miller, as a practice group specialist. This is the path that led him to law school at IU McKinney. He graduated magna cum laude and took a position as an associate at Hunton & Williams in Washington, D.C. He returned to Indianapolis in 2010 to take a position at Faegre Baker Daniels. In early 2012, Burns accepted a job at Google, where he is now a patent counsel in the company's main office in Mountain View, California. ❖

Pomp and Circumstance: Commencement 2015

The 2015 commencement ceremony for the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law took place on Saturday, May 9 in the Sagamore Ballroom of the Indiana Convention Center in downtown Indianapolis. The school awarded 278 Doctor of Jurisprudence (J.D.) degrees, 25 Master of Laws (LL.M.) degrees, two Doctor of Juridical Science (S.J.D.) degrees and one Master of Jurisprudence (M.J.) degree.

The commencement address was given by Anne Slaughter Andrew, '83, who was appointed by President Barack Obama to serve as the first women U.S. Ambassador to Costa Rica in 2010. Since leaving the State Department in 2013, former Ambassador Andrew is serving as Chairman of TerViva, LLC, an agro-technology company developing environmentally sustainable crops for food and fuel. In addition, former Ambassador Andrew serves on the Board of Directors of Ad Astra Rocket Company in Houston, Texas, and as an advisor to a number of start-up clean energy businesses. In addition to serving on the Board of Directors of Earth University, she also serves on the Board of Trustees of the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), on the Purdue University—Global Affairs Strategic Advisory Council and the Telluride Foundation (Colorado). Former Ambassador Andrew is an active member of the Council of American Ambassadors.

Student speakers at commencement were Fernanda Beraldi for the LL.M. graduates, Lucy Frick for the full-time J.D. graduates and Tarah Baldwin for the part-time J.D. graduates. The faculty prize was presented by Vice Dean Antony Page to Dylan Pittman. IUPUI Chancellor and IU Executive Vice President Charles Bantz provided greetings from the campus and university.

Associate Dean for Graduate Studies and International Affairs Karen Bravo introduced the candidates for the S.J.D. degree and Professor Frank Emmert conducted the hooding ceremony. Dean Bravo also introduced the LL.M. candidates and Professors Frank Sullivan and Tom Wilson conducted the hooding ceremony.

The M.J. candidate was introduced by Professor Deborah McGregor, the director of the M.J. program, and the hooding ceremony was conducted by Professor Wilson.

Johnny D. Pryor, Assistant Dean for Student Affairs, introduced the J.D. candidates. The hooding ceremony faculty members were Professor Michael Pitts, Professor Margaret Tarkington, and Professors Sullivan and Wilson.

The law school Marshals were Professors James Dimitri and George Edwards. Music was provided by the IUPUI Ceremonial Ensemble. ❖

IU McKinney Law Reunion: A Taste of McKinney

On Saturday, June 6, IU McKinney Law alumni from the classes of '84, '85, and '86, along with alumni from other classes, gathered at Café Patachou in Indianapolis to celebrate the anniversaries of their graduations. The event was also an opportunity to showcase IU McKinney Law alumni who are entrepreneurs in the food and beverage industry.

The venue for the event, Café Patachou, is owned and operated by alumna Martha Hoover, '80. Food and beverages were also supplied by Bluebeard, owned by Eddie Battista, '14; Black Acre Brewing Company, co-owned by Justin Miller, '11, Steve Ruby,' 11, and Jordan Gleason, '11; and Hotel Tango Artisan Distillery, co-owned by alumni Travis Barnes, '13, Hilary Barnes, '13, Nabeela Virjie, '13, Adam Willfond, '13 and their friend, Brian Willsey.

The event was the brainchild of alumnus Thomas Blackwell, '85, who worked with the IU McKinney Alumni Association to bring the event to life. ❖

Janice E. Kreuscher, '84, was celebrated as the 2015 Outstanding Alumna of the Year by the IU McKinney Alumnae Network at a luncheon in her honor at the Woodstock Club on June 12.

Audrey Grossman, '77, gave a tribute to Kreuscher, and later was joined by Richard Shevitz and Pamela Carter, '84, who shared stories as well.

Grossman told how she met Kreuscher in 1974, when Kreuscher, a reporter, interviewed her for a story she was writing for the Indianapolis News. Kreuscher worked as a journalist before going to law school. Grossman called her friend "one of the wittiest and smartest women I've ever met." She reached out to what she called the "fraternity of Jan fans" to learn more about her friend.

One of those "Jan fans," Richard Shevitz—a partner at Cohen & Malad, asked to share the tribute duties with Grossman. Shevitz talked about working with Kreuscher at the Indiana Attorney General's Office during Pamela Carter's administration. Kreuscher, a summa cum laude graduate of the law school, served as chief counsel of government litigation in the Office of the Attorney General when Carter took office.

Carter was next at the podium to honor her friend. During Kreuscher's time working for the Attorney General, the office won more United States Supreme Court cases and more "best brief" awards than any other, Carter said. The office also "made a lot of settled law, strong law that's been sustainable," she said, adding that a lot of the credit for those achievements was due to Kreuscher's work.

Kreuscher said she was touched by all the praise and fond remembrances. "I didn't plan to be a lawyer," Kreuscher said of her decision to go to law school. "I wanted to leave the News. I didn't think I wanted to be a lawyer. I figured law school would give me three years to figure out what would come next!"

Kreuscher spent the bulk of her legal career in the public sector, serving as general counsel of IndyGo, the Indianapolis transportation corporation, after leaving the AG's Office. She also taught as an adjunct professor at IU McKinney for several years.

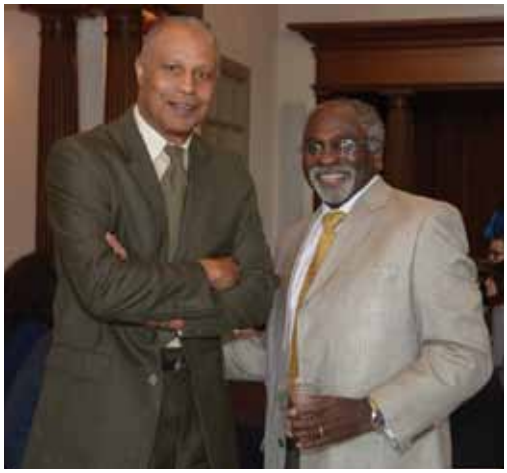
"I really enjoyed the students," Kreuscher said. "They reminded me why I love the law." ❖

Students, Faculty, Staff, and Alumni Enjoy Third Diversity & Alumni Dinner and Reception

IU McKinney's Black Law Students Association and Hispanic Law Society presented the third annual Diversity & Alumni Dinner and Reception on April 9 at the Indiana History Center.

Moderators for the event were Sierra Senor, '15, who was then president of the Black Law Students Association; and Steven Nunez, 3L, who was then president of the Hispanic Law Society.

The evening's keynote speaker was Doris Pryor, National Security Chief for the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of Indiana, who presented a talk titled, "A Dream Deferred: A Dialogue Regarding Today's Social Justice Movement." In her role in the U.S. Attorney's Office, she is responsible for prosecuting domestic and international terrorism, white collar fraud, trade secret violations, and drug and violent crime that occurs within the southern district.



Former Judges David Shaheed, '84, and Carr Darden, '70, visited at the event.

"As a member of the executive board, I am always taken aback by the immense support we receive in hosting this event," said Burnell Grimes, an IU McKinney 3L who was one of the organizers of the event. "Lawyers, law firms, and corporations throughout Indiana are interested in improving diversity in Indiana, and continue to increase their attendance and sponsorship every year."

With the proceeds, the student organizations are able to present scholarships to college-bound high school students; host social, networking, and academic events and workshops; and give back to the community through service-oriented projects. ❖

Professor Quigley, '87, Presents Faculty Book Talk on Labor Movement

Professor Fran Quigley, '87, spoke about the people he met and the research he did for his latest book, If We Can Win Here: The New Front Lines of the Labor Movement, during the first Faculty Book Talk event of the Fall 2015 semester. The event was held September 1 in the Wynne Courtroom. The book was published in Spring 2015 by Cornell University Press.

Professor Quigley marked the book's beginning as February 1, 2012, when hundreds of workers and supporters overspread the lawn of the Indiana Statehouse to protest the Right to Work legislation that was at the time advancing toward becoming state law. The measure passed in the Indiana Senate that day.

Yet on the same day in 2012, food service workers on the IUPUI campus approved their first collective bargaining agreement with Chartwells Dining Services, the contractor at the university that supplies food services. James Meyers, a lead food-service worker at IUPUI, talked with Quigley for the book, and his photograph is on its cover. Meyers was part of a panel that appeared at the event to share his story. He was joined on the panel by LaVenita Burnett, who works as a cashier in the café at Inlow Hall, and Matthew Warner, who works in security and was part of the effort to unionize workers in that sector.

"It's a bad time for workers, but workers have been in this place before," Professor Quigley said, pointing to the rise of the union movement in the early 20th century. "The movement toward organizing service-sector workers bodes well for their future, even more so when one considers that these are jobs that have to be done here and cannot be outsourced," he said. ❖

IU McKinney Celebrates Constitution Day with Review of Supreme Court Cases

Students, alumni, faculty and staff at IU McKinney commemorated Constitution Day on September 17 with a CLE program that featured a "Review of Recent Supreme Court Cases" at Inlow Hall.

Professors discussed issues in their areas of expertise that were raised in recent U.S. Supreme Court cases. Professor Shawn Boyne talked about the lethal injection case, Glossip v. Gross. Professor Robert Katz discussed the same-sex marriage case, Obergefell v. Hodges. Professor Gerard Magliocca talked about the redistricting case, Arizona State Legislature v. Arizona Independent Redistricting Commission. Professor Florence Wagman Roisman discussed the Fair Housing Act and the case, Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs v. The Inclusive Communities Project, Inc. Professor Roisman is a member of the ICP board and is well versed in the case and its outcome. And Professor Nicolas P. Terry discussed the professional licensing case, North Carolina Board of Dental Examiners v. Federal Trade Commission. ❖

IU McKinney Event Examines the School-to-Prison Pipeline and Means of Reform

IU McKinney Program on Law and State Government Fellows Heather Kinser and Marcus McGhee shared their research on the problems and potential solutions concerning the school-to-prison pipeline during the PLSG Symposium on September 25.

Titled "Rupturing the School-to-Prison Pipeline: State Government Efforts toward Expungement Reform," the daylong event featured scholars and practitioners sharing their expertise on the subject.

McGhee, who holds a bachelor's degree in criminal justice with a concentration in political science, and a master of public administration with a concentration in homeland security, kicked off the symposium by presenting his paper titled, "More 'Resource' Less 'Officer:' Suggestions Toward Rebalancing the Roles of the School Resource Officer."

The panel immediately following McGhee's address discussed the topic, "Current Record Keeping Technology—Harmful or Helpful?" Panelists included Clinical Associate Professor of Law Carolyn Frazier of Northwestern University School of Law; Associate Professor of Law Kevin Lapp of Loyola Law School in Los Angeles; and Deputy Prosecutor Jordan Stover, '10, of the Marion County Prosecutor's Office.

The keynote address, "From Criminal Justice to Human Justice: Building a Future Beyond Prison for All Youth," was delivered by Kyung-Ji "Kate" Rhee. Rhee is the deputy director for the Center for NuLeadership on Urban Solutions in Brooklyn.

Nearly 100 people attended the Program on Law and State Government Fellowship Symposium on September 25.

Kinser, a 14-year veteran of teaching in public schools, began the afternoon with a presentation of her scholarship titled, "A Legislative Proposal for Automatic Expungement." She holds bachelor's degrees in psychology and elementary education, and a master's degree in curriculum and instruction.

Hanger of Waples & Hanger and founder and president of the Children's Policy and Law Initiative of Indiana.

Closing remarks, "How State Governments Can Level the Playing Field," were delivered by Professor Cynthia Baker, Director of the Program on Law and State Government. ❖

Nancy Fortenberry Delivers Fourth Annual Birch Bayh Lecture

Nancy Fortenberry delivered the fourth annual Birch Bayh Lecture on October 22 at the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law. She is one of the nation's foremost experts on national security.

National security is a bipartisan effort, Fortenberry said, involving millions of dollars and the safety of us all. Public input is of vital importance in this endeavor, she said. Her lecture, entitled, "National Security, Local Impact: It's an Outside the Beltway Thing," took place in the Wynne Courtroom and garnered an audience of more than 150 students, faculty, alumni, and members of the legal community.

Fortenberry is the General Counsel to the President's Intelligence Advisory Board, Executive Office of the President, The White House, and previously served as Deputy Legal Advisor on the National Security Council Staff at The White House. She is also Associate General Counsel, in the Office of General Counsel, at the Central Intelligence Agency. Fortenberry is former Counsel to the Director of National Intelligence, Open Source Center. She is a National Security Crisis Law Fellow at the Georgetown University Law Center, and has over 25 years of experience in the national security field.

Fortenberry earned a Certificate from the Senior Executive Fellows Program at the Harvard University Kennedy School of Government. She also received a Certificate from the Excel: Intelligence Community Executive Leader Program at the Northwestern University Kellogg School of Management. Fortenberry holds an LL.M., with a certificate in National Security Law, from the Georgetown University Law Center; a J.D. from the American University, Washington College of Law; and a B.A. in Political Science, with Honors, from Jackson State University. In her free time, she has completed 26 marathons on four continents. Fortenberry is a native of Gulfport, Mississippi, lives in the Washington, D.C., area, and regularly visits Zionsville, Indiana.

The Birch Bayh Lecture is an annual event at the school, established in honor of former U.S. Senator Birch Bayh. The lecture series, made possible through the generous contributions of the Simon Property Group where Senator Bayh served on the board for 17 years, and friends of Birch Bayh, focuses on issues of importance to Senator Bayh throughout his long and distinguished career in government.❖

Spring Health Law Symposium Examines Medical Myths

The Hall Center for Law and Health and the Indiana Health Law Review presented the symposium titled "Medical Myths: Exploring Effectiveness, Misinformation and Scientific Rigor" at the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law on March 27.

The event explored the role of myths in multiple health arenas and analyzed how these myths affect medical, public health, economic and legal outcomes.

Dr. Aaron Carroll, Professor of Pediatrics and Assistant Dean for Research Mentoring of the IU School of Medicine and Director of the Center for Health Policy and Professionalism Research delivered the keynote address "Medical Myths: Why Do They Still Exist in the 21st Century?" His talk was moderated by Professor Diana R.H. Winters of IU McKinney.

Panel discussions throughout the day expanded upon the topic. The first panel discussed "Myths of Medical Malpractice." Discussants were Professor David A. Hyman, H. Ross & Helen Workman Chair in Law, Director, Epstein Program in Health Law and Policy at the University of Illinois College of Law; and Norman Tabler, of counsel at Fagre Baker Daniels. Moderator for this discussion was Chad Priest, chief executive officer of the American Red Cross Indiana Region.

The second panel had the topic "Preventative Care, Public Health and Misinformation." Panelists were Professor Ross Silverman of the IU Richard M. Fairbanks School of Public Health, and Professor of Public Health & Law at IU McKinney; and Professor Doug Blanke, Founder and Director of the Public Health Law Center and Chair of the Robins Kaplan Miller & Ciresi Endowed Directorship, William Mitchell College of Law. Their discussion was moderated by Professor Tracy D. Gunter of the IU School of Medicine.

Matthew R. Gutwein, president and CEO of the Health and Hospital Corporation of Marion County, delivered the luncheon address. Gutwein's lecture was moderated by Professor Nicolas P. Terry, Hall Render Professor of Law and Executive Director of the William S. and Christine S. Hall Center for Law and Health at IU McKinney.

The post-lunch panel talked about "Transparency and Patient Decision-Making," a discussion moderated by Professor Eric Meslin, Director of the IU Center for Bioethics, Associate Dean and Professor of Bioethics at the IU School of Medicine, and Professor of Law and Bioethics, IU McKinney School of Law. Panelists were Professor Kristin M. Madison, Professor of Law and Health Sciences, School of Law and the Bouvé College of Health Sciences at Northeastern University; and Paul R. Helft, Director of the Charles Warren Fairbanks Center for Medical Ethics, Indiana University Health.

The final panel of the day discussed "Patients' 'Skin in the Game' and the Economics of Healthcare." Discussants were Professor Timothy McBride of the George Warren Brown School of Social Work, Washington University in St. Louis; and Professor David Orentlicher, Samuel R. Rosen Professor of Law and co-director of the William S. and Christine S. Hall Center for Law and Health at IU McKinney. Their talk was moderated by Professor Heather McCabe, '03, of the IU School of Social Work. ❖

Indiana Health Law Review Symposium Considers Social Determinants of Health

The Indiana Health Law Review Symposium for the fall semester took place on October 16 and examined prescription drug policy, interprofessional practice and education, and the role poverty plays in health. Scholars and practitioners from across the country, as well as from the metropolitan Indianapolis area, shared their experiences and expertise.

Professor Charity Scott of Georgia State University College of Law offered the keynote address titled "Interprofessional Collaboration in Public Health Law and Policy: Moving the Needle on Social Determinants of Health." Her presentation was moderated by Professor David Orentlicher, co-director of the Hall Center for Law and Health at IU McKinney.

The first panel discussed the topic, "Poverty, Health, and Justice: How Can Law Firms, Health Organizations, and Community Partners Collaborate to Influence Social Determinants of Health?" Panelists for this discussion included Professor Ross Silverman of the IU Fairbanks School of Public Health; Anna Kirkman, associate counsel and medical-legal partnership director for Eskenazi Health; and Professor Elizabeth Tobin-Tyler of the Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University, Brown University School of Public Health. This panel was moderated by Professor Fran Quigley, '87, clinical professor of law at IU McKinney who teaches in the Health and Human Rights Clinic.

The day's second panel discussion focused on the topic "Advancing Public Health through Interprofessional Policy Advocacy: Not Just for Lobbyists Anymore." Professor Bruce Jansson of the University of Southern California School of Social Work and Professor Peter Jacobson of the University of Michigan School of Public Health offered their insights. Moderator for this discussion was Chad Priest, chief executive officer of the American Red Cross Indiana Region.

The luncheon address was delivered by Dean Andrea Pfeifle, assistant dean and director of the IU Center for Interprofessional Health Education and Practice, and associate professor of family medicine. The moderator for her discussion was Professor Nicolas Terry, executive director of the Hall Center for Law and Health at IU McKinney.

The afternoon's panel discussions kicked off with the topic "Community Partnership: The Promise of Interprofessional Practice and Education." The panelists were Professor Micah Berman of the College of Public Health and Moritz College of Law at The Ohio State University, and Professor Heather McCabe, '03, of the IU School of Social Work. The discussion was moderated by Professor Sula Hood of the IU Fairbanks School of Public Heatlh.

The symposium concluded with a panel discussion of the topic "Prescription Drug Policy: A Case Study in Public Health Law and Policy." Panelists were Professor Eric Wright of Georgia State University School of Public Health, and Corey Davis of the National Health Law Program. This discussion was moderated by Dean Joan Duwve of the IU Fairbanks School of Public Health. Dean Duwve also is chief medical officer of the Indiana State Department of Health. ❖

The New IU Health Law Scholars Program at IU McKinney

The Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law is pleased to announce the inaugural class of IU Health Law Scholars, a new program made possible by a generous gift from IU Health. As explained by Dan Evans,'76, Chief Executive Officer of IU Health, through this far-sighted program, "we strive to create a student-centric collaboration with the McKinney School of Law that would help IU Health create, attract, and retain the best and the brightest."

The IU Health Law Scholars Program recognizes the academic achievement of highly qualified students who are pursuing health-related joint degrees. It is designed to make Juris Doctor/Master of Public Health (JD/MPH) and Juris Doctor/Master of Health Administration (JD/MHA) degrees more immersive and more affordable. The JD/MPH and JD/MHA joint degrees are offered jointly though the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law and the IU Fairbanks School of Public Health. Professor Nicolas Terry, Executive Director of the Hall Center for Law and Health, welcomes the inaugural class of "exceptional students" and notes the "great professional value that these joint degrees provide for IU McKinney's health law students." IU McKinney Dean Andrew Klein adds, "We are very grateful to IU Health and Dan Evans for their generous support of this far-sighted program."

During the course of their joint degree programs, students selected as IU Health Law Scholars will receive scholarship support, experiential learning opportunities, and co-curricular developmental opportunities. These program enhancements are designed to allow the IU Health Law Scholars to deepen their understanding of the complex interaction among health law, health administration, and public health, while also providing them essential opportunities to apply their knowledge in experiential learning settings. For example, IU Health Law Scholars will be assigned practice mentors specific to their chosen fields, and they will be involved in co-curricular academic activities sponsored by the nationally-recognized Hall Center for Law & Health at the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law as well as programming through the IU Fairbanks School of Public Health.

Paul Halverson, Dean of the Fairbanks School of Public Health, sees the IU Health Law Scholars program as an important advancement in professional training. "Employers often tell us they need new graduates to be 'job ready,'" said Halverson. "Thanks to the very generous support of Dan Evans and IU Health, we can ensure that students get the clinical experience needed to hit the ground running after graduation."

The first class of IU Health Law Scholars is made up of students from a wide variety of backgrounds who all have high ambitions for their careers after obtaining their joint degrees.

Kreigh Howard Cook, who is originally from New Castle, Indiana, is currently pursuing the JD/MHA. Cook, who has a passion for improving rural health, embodies the program's goal to train healthcare leaders who possess a broad view of the transformative potential of health law. He looks forward to utilizing the unique knowledge and skills he has gained as a joint degree student to seek a leadership position within a healthcare organization that will allow him to serve a rural patient population.

Kristen Koewler, a JD/MHA student from Evansville, Indiana, hopes to return to southwest Indiana to begin her career. "My dream job is to be named Chief Operating Officer of an area hospital," she said. Koewler is especially grateful for the financial support offered through the IU Health Law Scholars Program. She is one member of a set of triplets, and she has a brother who is two years older—her family has had four children in college at the same time for several years. "Being an IU Health Law Scholar not only is an incredible opportunity to learn and network, but it greatly helps to ease the financial burden of graduate school. I feel extremely fortunate and honored to be an IU Health Law Scholar."

Alessa Beatriz Quinones-Ortiz, who was born in Ponce, Puerto Rico, and moved to Clare, Michigan, at age 10, looks forward to the possibility of building her career in Indiana. "I now gladly call Indiana home, even though most of my family is spread all around the United States, including Florida and Georgia," she said. She is pursuing the JD/MHA, and the dual-degree program has shown her many career opportunities. "As of right now, I would like to possibly do an administrative fellowship when I graduate and later on possibly work as a counsel at a hospital," she said. "The dual degree and work keeps me extremely busy, but it has opened doors for me."

Emily Sargent intends to utilize her JD/MPH with a concentration in Health Policy and Management to continue her commitment to serving others. Sargent, a second-year student from Carmel, Indiana, is the Secretary of the IU McKinney Health Law Society, a legal clinic manager at the IU Student Outreach Clinic, and an intern in the Office of Legal Affairs at the Indiana State Department of Health. In addition, Sargent is a tutor for the Dean's Tutorial Society, a 1L mentor, and an IU McKinney Student Ambassador. "After graduation, I plan to work in health policy analysis and development and in public health management," she said. "I see myself working in that capacity for the government or for a healthcare system."

A commitment to improving population health through effective utilization of the law motivated Alyssa Servies to pursue the JD/MPH. Last year, Servies, who is originally from Shelbyville, Indiana, enrolled in a course designed to teach law, social work, and public health students to employ interprofessional practice skills in public health law, policy, and advocacy. Servies was part of a team of students who worked on a project that offered a legislative comparison regarding medical-legal partnerships. She intends to begin her career as a public health attorney and hopes to eventually educate the next generation of public health lawyers by working in academia.

Though the students of the inaugural class of IU Health Law Scholars must first complete their academic programs, they will be well-positioned to embody the aspirations of the IU Health Law Scholars Program while advancing their personal academic and professional goals. In establishing the funding for this program, Dan Evans stated that "our aim is to assist an already excellent law school in identifying students of merit and providing a collaboration with potential employers like IU Health. My own experience with McKinney students tells me we will be very successful." ❖

Huberfeld Featured Speaker for Health Grand Rounds

On Tuesday, September 22, Nicole Huberfeld, the Ashland-Spears Distinguished Research Professor at the University of Kentucky College of Law and Bioethics Associate at the College of Medicine, spoke on the topic, "Pursuing Universality: Taking Stock of the ACA 5 Years In." Huberfeld's scholarship focuses on the cross-section of health care law and policy and constitutional law with emphasis on federalism, federal spending power, and federal health care programs. Her article entitled "Federalizing Medicaid" was cited by the U.S. Supreme Court in NFIB v. Sebelius; her articles also have been cited in numerous briefs to the U.S. Supreme Court. She is widely published and is writing the first new health care law casebook in a generation (with Elizabeth Leonard and Kevin Outterson), slated for publication in 2016. Shown in the photo are, from left: Professor Nicole Huberfeld, Dean Andy Klein, Professor Fran Quigley and Professor Nicolas P. Terry. ❖

Annual Fall CLE Examines "Legal Frontiers in Health Law: IP, Information, Ethics, and Business Practice"

IU McKinney's Annual Fall Continuing Legal Education Program was held on October 6 in the Wynne Courtroom at Inlow Hall. The program funds scholarships for McKinney law students, and the courtroom was full of attendees eager to hear from a distinguished array of speakers.

The morning began with some insights from Kevin Collins of Covington & Burling in Washington, D.C. He spoke on the topic "Personal Jurisdictions in Hatch-Waxman Cases post Diamler." He was followed by Jonathan S. Jennings of Pattishall McAuliffe in Chicago who spoke on the topic "Understanding Identity Rights to Avoid Pitfalls in Pharma Advertising."

Dr. Erin Albert, '12, of Butler University's College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences spoke on "Hot Topics in Pharmacy Law." Her talk covered a wide range of subjects related to pharmacy law, including an interactive segment, where she invited audience members to experiment with a device that provided instructions regarding how to administer medication.

The topic, "Protecting Trade Secrets: Lessons Learned from Real World Events," was explored by Stephen E. Reynolds (Indianapolis) and Nicholas R. Merker (Chicago) of Ice Miller. Ann Grayson of Barnes & Thornburg in Indianapolis offered a presentation that focused on "Information Governance: Anxiety's Antidote."

The program concluded with an "Indiana Ethics Update" from Mike Witte, '82, Executive Secretary of the Indiana Disciplinary Commission.❖

Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation Makes Connections for Students, Practitioners

The law school's Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation hosts a monthly Distinguished Lecture Series and a weekly lunchtime speaker series for students. The events offer an opportunity for students and practitioners alike to hear from lawyers and scholars working at the cutting edge of this area of law. The Center is under the direction of Professor Xuan-Thao Nguyen, who holds the Gerald L. Bepko Chair in Law. Professor Nguyen encourages and expects students to interact with and have questions for the guests who speak at the law school, and the exchanges have every indication of being enjoyable for all involved. What follows are photos from a smattering of the many events offered by the Center in Spring and Fall 2015. ❖

Professor Nguyen Part of Group Offering Proposals to Revise Vietnam Law

Professor Xuan-Thao Nguyen provided comments during a public hearing on proposed revisions to Vietnam's Secured Transactions Law held by the Legal Committee of the Vietnam National Assembly in Ho Chi Minh City on July 27. This is the part of the final stretch of what has been a three-year process, working with the Ministry of Justice Legal Team on revisions of the law. Professor Nguyen was the only foreign expert invited to speak to the committee. ❖

Islamic Law Association Hosts Event on Islamic Banking

Alhadi Altower, a doctor of juridical science candidate at IU McKinney, presented the lecture "Islamic Banking: Bank without Interest" on September 30 in the Inlow Hall Wynne Courtroom. The event, the first Islam and International Law Conference, hosted by the Islamic Law Association, offered an analysis of Islamic banking and how it compares to conventional banking. Altower explained how Islamic banking works and detailed the principals that guide it. Altower is a professor at Al-Jabal Al-Gharbi and Al-Rihibat Universities in Libya. In addition, he was a legal adviser in government administration at Mizda District, Libya, 2002-2006; dean and faculty of law member at Mizda University in 2004; and a public prosecutor at Jadu Court of Appeal in Libya from 1996 to 2004. ❖

IU McKinney's Chinese Law Summer Program Celebrates 28th Year

Students from the United States, Columbia, and Saudi Arabia took part in the Chinese Law Summer Program (CLSP) May 15 through June 14.

Now in its 28th year, the CLSP is held at Renmin University of China School of Law. In addition to J.D. students, two LL.M. students were among those who traveled to Beijing for the month-long program. In addition to those from IU McKinney, law schools at Boston College, University of Minnesota, University of Oklahoma, and University of Tennessee had students who took part.

CLSP is directed by Professor Tom Wilson, who served as resident professor at Renmin. He also co-directed, along with Renmin Professor Meng Yanbei, the sixth annual International Forum for Law Students. The forum's goal is to enable law students from around the world to research a topics relating to a selected theme and to gather at Renmin to present what they learned to an audience of law professors, students, attorneys, judges, and government officials. This year's theme was "The Relationship of Government and Markets in the Perspective of Law." Two McKinney students took part in the forum.

The fourth annual Summer Program in American Law for students from Sun Yat-sen University in Guangzhou, China, was held at IU McKinney July 20 to August 1. In addition to in-class instruction, the program also features law-related and cultural field trips. U.S. District Court Judge William T. Lawrence, '75 and Indiana Supreme Court Justice Steve David, '82, were among the IU McKinney alumni who hosted the students. ❖

Graduate Studies Program Presents Event on Cultural Competency for Attorneys

Cultural competency, the ability to interact well with people of different cultures and socio-economic backgrounds, is a needed skill for all lawyers. IU McKinney's Graduate Studies Lecture Series offered a panel discussion on this topic on September 17 at Inlow Hall.

Panelists for "Cultural Competency: A Needed Skill for the 21st Century Attorney," included, from left, Eleonora Gomes Caldas, senior global contract analyst for Closure Systems International; Associate Dean for Graduate Studies and International Affairs Karen Bravo; Ansuyah Naiken, Global Competency Training Manager, The International Center; Angela D. Adams, '04, Associate General Counsel, Office of the Vice President and General Counsel, Indiana University; and Tabitha K. Meier, '08, Compliance Counsel, Hillenbrand, Inc. ❖

We could use your support in recruiting students!

Each year the school hosts a variety of events to introduce prospective students to IU McKinney Law. We have many great events scheduled this year and we could use the support of alumni to help us to continue to recruit strong students into the law school.

We welcome assistance with any of the following events. Here is our schedule for 2016:

Red Carpet Event: This event is for admitted students who are in the top 10% of the admitted pool. These students are invited to spend 2 days at the law school participating in the Women's Caucus; dinner with the Dean; lunch at a law firm; meet and greets with faculty and alumni; and a social event. The purpose is to expose them to Indianapolis and one of our most valuable assets—our alumni. Last year lunch was sponsored by Lewis & Kappes, and Barnes & Thornburg generously donated their box suite and refreshments for the Pacers game. In 2015, 15 students attended and 10 enrolled (67%). Seeking the following:

- Social event sponsor 2/18/16—host the group at a social event, restaurant or networking social hour at your firm or organization.

Diversity Day: This event is for admitted students who fall within the diversity category. These students are invited to spend the day at the law school and have a meet and greet with the Dean, meet alumni and faculty, visit the Statehouse, participate in diversity-related programming, and attend a social event in the city. In 2015, 20 students attended and 17 enrolled (85%). Seeking the following:

- Lunch sponsor 4/8/16—host the group at your firm or organization and provide lunch.
- Alumni to participate in a meet and greet at the law school.
- Social event sponsor 4/8/16—host the group at a social event, restaurant or networking social hour at your firm or organization.

Associate for an Afternoon: This event is for all admitted students who are interested in shadowing an attorney for the afternoon. Alumni volunteers allow 1-4 students to shadow them at work for a 3-hour time period. At the conclusion of the event, a networking reception is held at a firm or organization. The purpose is to expose them to the city, our alumni and the job duties of an attorney. In 2015, we had 15 alumni volunteers and 26 students participate. Faegre Baker Daniels generously sponsored the reception with refreshments at the firm. Over 95% of the students who participated enrolled in the Fall. Seeking the following:

- 40 (minimum) alumni volunteers to host shadow students on July 21, 2016.
- Social event sponsor 7/21/16—host a networking social hour at your firm or organization from 4:30-6:00 p.m.

Admitted Student Open Houses: These events include a panel of alumni who participate in a Q&A with admitted students. Seeking alumni volunteers to sit on the panel. Event dates: April 9, 2016 and June 18, 2016.

FOR ALL

The Indiana University Bicentennial Campaign

For All Who Create Tomorrow's Leaders

The Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law has enjoyed more than 120 years as a vibrant legal educational institution. It has a strong student body, an engaged faculty of talented educators and scholars, opportunities for students to participate in hands-on education, and excellence in its academic centers and programs. A hallmark of the school throughout its history has been its focus on educating future professionals who will make a positive and lasting difference for the clients they will serve, the organizations they will lead, and the communities they will help improve.

As IU McKinney Law looks toward the celebration of IU's bicentennial in 2020, it has identified key funding priorities that will help to ensure that the future is every bit as bright as the school's impressive past. To advance the school's educational mission and its impact on the lives of its current and future students, IU McKinney Law—together with the entire university—launched the public phase of For All: The Indiana University Bicentennial Campaign. As part of this historic, first-ever, university-wide campaign, IU is seeking to raise significant funds that will be needed to pursue excellence as IU moves into its third century. IU McKinney Law's priorities in the campaign include seeking critical resources for:

Student support and success

- Merit and need-based scholarships will provide opportunities for a high quality legal education for talented students who might otherwise have to forego their dreams of attending law school.
- Funds to support services that will promote learning and academic success, and will facilitate career growth and professional development.

Faculty development

- The core of the law school's excellence is a faculty of dedicated teachers and committed scholars. Funds to establish endowed chairs and professorships, as well as other resources to attract and retain outstanding faculty members, will be essential to maintain and build upon the law school's legacy of great faculty members who inspire learning and advance our understanding of the law.

Expanded experiential learning

- One of the law school's historical strengths is its focus on providing real-world learning opportunities for our students. This kind of "hands on" learning has never been more important. Additional funding is necessary to expand and enhance these opportunities through strong legal clinic programs, skills training, and educational partnerships with external organizations.

Advancing the academic centers and programs that create a better state, nation, and world

- Opportunities are created through the law school's centers and programs for faculty and students to collaborate with the legal community, with those in public and nonprofit service, and with business leaders to explore complex legal topics and address important societal issues. Funding for these centers and programs will help students gain access to learning from legal scholars, those who shape public policy, and professionals in business—all of whom are confronting today's biggest challenges. Such resources will ensure that the work of our academic centers and programs will be empowered to pursue solutions to these challenges in ways that will improve society.

"We are very proud of the accomplishments of McKinney Law alumni throughout the state, across the country, and around the world. Graduates of this law school have played leading roles in the legal, business, government, and nonprofit sectors," said Dean Andrew R. Klein. "With the generous support of our alumni and friends during this campaign, the IU McKinney School of Law is positioned to pursue excellence in teaching, academic research, and service to the profession and to society." Dean Klein observed the dual significance of the campaign name by noting that "The campaign is an opportunity "for all" who have benefitted from a McKinney Law education in the past to join together in building upon our history of success and making a lasting difference "for all" who will benefit from such generosity now and in the future." ❖

Reception Celebrates Cohen & Malad, LLP Consumer Law Fellowship

The Cohen & Malad, LLP Consumer Law Fellowship was celebrated with a reception at Inlow Hall on August 25. IU McKinney 3L Justin McGiffen is the fellowship's first recipient.

Cohen & Malad, LLP, established the fellowship in 2013 to create an opportunity for students interested in consumer law to pursue research related to this area of law. The fellow works with the law school's pro bono partner organizations or through the law school's clinical programs to research topics in consumer law, mass torts, and class actions. The fellow also must plan and implement a symposium designed to educate the legal community about these issues. The inaugural event is scheduled for February 19, 2016.

"From a policy perspective, consumer law fascinates me because it seeks to strike a balance between establishing basic consumer rights while still maintaining a legal landscape conducive to economic growth," McGriffen said. "This balance is struck by establishing standards of fair trade, competition, and accurate information in the marketplace. By removing the bad actors from the marketplace, consumer confidence swells and both consumers and honest businesses prosper."

The Cohen & Malad Fellow works under the direct supervision of an attorney who is well versed in the area of law the student is interested in studying. Cheryl Koch-Martinez of Indiana Legal Services is the supervising attorney for this year's fellow. ❖

Cynthia Adams gave two presentations over the summer. She spoke on "Cross-Cultural Negotiation Strategies," at the Global Legal Skills Conference in Chicago, Illinois in May, and was a co-presenter on "Time-Shifting in the Age of Dr. Who: Designing Interactive Asynchronous Skill and Seminar Courses," at the CALI Conference in Denver, Colorado on June 19, 2015. Professor Adams also co-authored The Guide to U.S. Legal Analysis and Communication (2d ed., Aspen 2015). She was re-appointed to a second term on the Executive Committee of the Indiana Legal Services Board of Directors, and serves on the ABA Business Law Section's Committee on LLCs, Partnerships and Unincorporated Entities.

Cynthia Baker is co-chairing, along with Professor Max Huffman, the law school's ABA Reaccreditation Committee (ABARC). Professors Baker and Huffman are working with a wonderful committee of students, alumni, professional staff, and faculty to prepare for the ABA site visit to the school in the fall of 2016. In that capacity, Professors Baker and Huffman presented spring and fall ABARC updates to our law school's Board of Visitors and Alumni Board.

Professor Baker was honored by her admission as a Fellow to the Indiana Bar Foundation in June. In August, Professor Baker gave the keynote address for the Hamilton County Leadership Academy, entitled, "Leadership: Fast and Slow." In September, Professor Baker presented remarks, "State Government and the Collateral Consequences of Juvenile Justice," at the 14th Program on Law and State Government Fellowship Symposium, R*upturing the School-to-Prison Pipeline: State Government Efforts toward Expungement Reform*.

Shawn Boyne was selected to participate in the IUPUI Next Generation 2.0 leadership training program which is designed to prepare faculty and staff to assume campus leadership positions.

In May, Professor Boyne delivered eight lectures at the Shanghai University of Political Science and Law, including an opening lecture entitled, "A Look at Police Shootings in the United States." In July, Professor Boyne participated in a panel entitled, "Edward Snowden: Patriot, Whistleblower, or Spy?" at the SEALS Conference in Florida. In June, she co-directed the law school's first "Summer Leadership Academy" for undergraduate students of color who are interested in attending law school.

She is currently working with Professors Fran Watson and Catherine Lemmer to supervise a "Diplomacy Lab" project at the law school in which eight students at the school are conducting research for the U.S. State Department. In the fall semester, she taught an online course in cybercrime which featured weekly simulation exercises.

Professor Boyne published a book chapter entitled, "Financial Incentives and Truth-Telling: The Growth of Whistle-blowing Legislation in the United States," in G. Thuesing (ed.) WHISTLEBLOWING (Springer 2015) as well as an article entitled "Fighting Global Corruption" which appeared in the Chinese legal journal, FRONTIERS OF CRIMINAL LAW in July 2015.

Professor Boyne Invited to UCLA Conference

Professor Boyne is one of just a few legal experts invited to deliver a new paper at UCLA's upcoming workshop on "Prosecutors and Democracy." The workshop, which is being organized by David Skalansky (Stanford) and Maximo Langer (UCLA), will explore the ways in which prosecutors exercise discretion as well as the issue of whether prosecutors are held accountable for their decision-making practices. Professor Boyne's recent book, T*he German Prosecution Service: Guardians of the Law?* (2014) highlighted the extent to which German prosecutors follow their statutory mandate to investigate and prosecute cases through an objective lens.

Professor Boyne's conference paper, entitled, "German Prosecutors and the Rechtsstaat," will explore the degree to which politics influences prosecutorial decision-making in Germany.

The workshop will feature some of the world's foremost experts in comparative criminal law including: Mathilde Cohen (University of Connecticut School of Law); Angela J. Davis (American University Washington College of Law); Antony Duff (University of Minnesota School of Law; Department of Philosophy, University of Stirling); Ingrid V. Eagly (UCLA School of Law), Jacqueline Hodgson (University of Warwick School of Law); Daniel C. Richman (Columbia Law School); Jonathan Simon (Berkeley School of Law), William J. Simon (Columbia Law School; Stanford Law School); and David A. Sklansky (Stanford Law School).

Karen Bravo organized and co-led, the First Global Conference, Slavery Past, Present and Future, at Mansfield College, Oxford University, United Kingdom, July 7-9. Professor Bravo also participated as a panelist, speaking on the topic "Making 'Slavery' Work" on the panel entitled "What is Slavery?". She also participated in the annual meeting of the American Sociological Association in Chicago, August 22-25. The meeting's topic was Sexualities in the Social World. Professor Bravo served on a panel, "Can Comparative Historical Sociology Save the World—Modern Slavery," where she presented her research on "Interrogating the State's Roles in Today's Slaveries."

Professor Bravo's publications include the book, The Business and Human Rights Landscape: Moving Forward, Looking Back, (co-edited with Jena Martin) (Cambridge University Press), October 2015. She also contributed a book chapter, entitled "Business and Human Rights: A Call for Labor Liberalization," to the volume. Professor Bravo also published a blog post: Do Refugees have a Right to Hospitality?, The Conversation, Nov. 5, 2015 available at https:// theconversation.com/do-refugees-have-a-right-to-hospitality-47629.

Her book review, "The Human Rights of Children in an Age of Mobility," in 37 Human Rights Quarterly 787 (2015) (reviewing of Jacqueline Bhabha, Child Migration & Human Rights in a Global Age (Princeton, 2014), ISBN 978-0-6911-4360-6, 374 pages) was published during the summer.

She also authored a blog post commentary: "A Crossroads in the Fight Against Human Trafficking? Let's Take the Structural Route: A Response to Janie Chuang" (commenting on Jane A. Chuang, Exploitation Creep and the Unmaking of Human Trafficking Law, 108 A.J. INTL LAW 610 (2014)), posted to AJIL Unbound (2015), available at http://www.asil.org/blogs.

Professor Bravo was reappointed in August to a second one-year term on the Council of the American Bar Association Central European and Eurasian Law Initiative (ABA-CEELI).

In collaboration with campus colleagues and IU McKinney alums, as co-director of the IUPUI Next Generation 2.0., she launched a one-year leadership training institute for women and underrepresented minority faculty and staff at IUPUI. The year-long curriculum began in August of 2015.

Jennifer Drobac has published "Religion and Employment" (co-authored with Jill L. Wesley, '12), which is included in Religion and the State (Boris I. Bittker, Scott C. Idelman, and Frank S. Ravitch, eds., Cambridge University Press, 2015). Her work "Sex-Based Harassment: A Comment on U.S. and Indian Legal Responses," can be found in Women's Rights and Gender Equality (Gurpreet Randhawa, et al., eds., Aashna Publications, 2015) (available in India, ISBN no. 978-81-926288-1-3). Bepko Receives University Medal

Former IUPUI Chancellor Gerald L. Bepko was awarded the University Medal during a ceremony held October 13.

Created in 1982 by then-Indiana University President John Ryan, the medal is awarded rarely, on average once every two years, and to individuals of unique accomplishment upon recommendation of the university's president, and the authority and action of the IU Board of Trustees.

"It is difficult to imagine the modern IUPUI campus without the vision of Professor Bepko," said IU McKinney Dean Andrew R. Klein. "His leadership at the McKinney School of Law, IUPUI, and his role at IU is remarkable. I'm so pleased the university has chosen to honor him for his service in this way."

Professor Bepko began his service at Indiana University when he joined the faculty at the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law in 1972. He became a full professor three years later, was named associate dean for academic affairs in 1979, and became dean of the law school in 1981. He served as IUPUI's Chancellor from 1986 to 2002, and simultaneously served as IU's vice president for long-range planning. During his time as IUPUI's chancellor, Professor Bepko led a movement to unify the various programs of IUPUI academically and geographically by bringing all schools to the West Michigan Street campus and presiding over the construction of more than 20 buildings. He also led efforts to establish IUPUI as a major urban campus that is now classified among the best in its peer group, and to establish IUPUI as an important component of central Indiana's research corridor along with IU Bloomington and Purdue University West Lafayette. During his tenure as chancellor enrollment grew by nearly 25 percent and external support for faculty activities grew from $38 million in 1986 to more than $200 million in 2001-2002. In addition, he led the first six years of the seven-year fund raising Campaign for IUPUI, which generated more than one billion dollars before its conclusion in 2004.

Professor Bepko served for a decade as a member of the Permanent Editorial Board of the Uniform Commercial Code, and is currently a member of the American Law Institute, and a life member of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. He also is a member of the American Bar Association and a life fellow of the American Bar Foundation. He currently teaches the courses "commercial law" and "leadership and law."

Consent: Strictures from Neuroscience, Economics and Relational Contracting," co-authored with Oliver R. Goodenough, appears at 12 IND. HEALTH L. REV. 471-531 (2015). "The Myth of 'Legal' Consent in a Consumer Culture" was published in Facets of Consumerism in a Global Economy (Anand Pawar, ed., Twenty First Century Publications, 2015) (available in India, ISBN no. 978-93-85446-27-6). In addition to these articles, "Consent, Teenagers, and (un)Civil(ized) Consequences" appears in Children, Sexuality and the Law (Sacha M. Coupet and Ellen Marrus, eds., New York University Press, 2015).

Professor Drobac served as the Convener and a Panelist for The Hunting Ground, a special program of the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law, on November 12, 2015. Additionally, she delivered the Keynote Address "Juvenile Consent and its Exploitation by Adult Sexual Predators" at The Gathering at the Skyline Club, Indianapolis, Indiana, on November 19, 2015. She continues to serve as the Indiana University Faculty Council Executive Committee Representative for the Task Force on Sexual Assault, Prevention, Intervention, and Response (http://sapir.iupui.edu/).

Yvonne Dutton presented a paper, "Unpacking the Deterrent Effect of the International Criminal Court: A Kenya Case Study," at the American Bar Association Criminal Justice Section Roundtable in Washington, D.C. on October 22, and at the American Society of International Law Research Forum, also in Washington, D.C. on October 23. The paper is based on research that Professor Dutton has done in Kenya, looking at the impact of the ICC on violence and mass atrocities. The research project is funded by The Hague Institute for Global Justice. The local partner on the project is the Nairobi Peace Initiative-Africa.

Professor Dutton received a "Teaching With Canvas Pioneer" award for the IUPUI campus in June. Canvas is the learning management system Indiana University is using to augment traditional teaching methods and to provide new teaching initiatives such as online classes. Professor Dutton was recognized for her online International Criminal Law course, offered during the 2014-15 academic year. The award included a $2500 stipend.

George Edwards was elected (by the IU McKinney faculty in October 2015) as a member of the House of Representatives of the Association of American Law Schools (AALS) to represent the faculty of the IU McKinney School of Law for 2015 – 2016. He was appointed vice chair of the International Courts Committee of the ABA Section of International Law (summer 2015), and vice chair for diversity for the same committee.

Professor Edwards was credentialed by the Pentagon as a "Media Representative," permitted to travel to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. In Cuba, he conducted research for The Guantanamo Bay Reader, scheduled to be published by Indiana University Press in 2016. He toured Guantanamo Bay detention facilities, in November, where he interviewed civilian and military officials, took photographs, and published reports of the Media trip to Guantanamo.

On October 22, Professor Edwards presented a video-linked presentation on U.S. Military Commissions at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba: The Right to a Fair Trial for All Stakeholders in This War Crimes Tribunal, to law students at Izhevsk University School of Law, Moscow, Russian Federation. He was joined by IU McKinney Master of Laws (LL.M.) students, Faisal Sadat, Viktoriia Serediuk-Buz, & Ahmed Elbaghadady .

In November, Professor Edwards presented, "Do You Want to Study Law in the U.S.? What South African Students Want to Know About U.S. Law Study." Presentation scheduled at New American Space in Cape Town, American Corners at the Cape, Central Library Cape Town, with co-presenter Joane Theodule, 3L, and joined by Alice AK King (EducationUSA Advisor - U.S. Department of State Affiliate) (Cape Town, South Africa & Indianapolis, Indiana – by Video-Link).

In July, Professor Edwards, IU McKinney J.D. student Joane Theodule, and Ntsika Fakudze, LL.M, '11, made presentations about legal education in the United States at two United States Embassies and one U.S. Consulate in South Africa, the Kingdom of Swaziland, Mozambique, and Senegal in late July.

Professor Edwards presented "U.S. Law School Education for West and Southern African Students" at the U.S. Embassy in Dakar, Senegal on July 24, and hand-delivered the presentation to the U.S. Embassy in Mbabane, Kingdom of Swaziland, on July 29.

The topic "U.S. Master of Laws (LL.M.) & Other Law Programs: What South African Students Want To Know About U.S. Law Study" was presented by Professor Edwards and Theodule at the U.S. Consulate, in Cape Town, South Africa on July 27.

"University & Law School Study in the U.S. for Students from the Kingdom of Swaziland," was Professor Edwards' topic for the Annual Careers Fair at the Royal Swazi Convention Centre in Mbabane, Kingdom of Swaziland on July 29.

Together with Fakudze, Professor Edwards presented "Do You Want to Study Law in the U.S.A.?: A Student from Mozambique's Guide to U.S. Master of Laws (LL.M.) & Other Law Degree Programs" at the U.S. Embassy in Maputo, Mozambique on July 30.

Over the summer, Professor Edwards travelled to Ft. Meade, Maryland to observe U.S. Military Commission hearings in the case against Hadi al Iraqi, an alleged member of al Qaeda. He monitored hearings accompanied by IU McKinney students Tex Boonjue and Hee Jong (Alice) Choi. He also sent other IU McKinney affiliates (students, faculty, staff, graduates) to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba to monitor U.S. Military Commission hearings.

In June, Professor Edwards spoke as a guest lecturer in International Law class taught by Professor Dr. Simeon Sungi, United States International University—Africa. He spoke on the topic, "An Introduction to International Human Rights Law for a Kenyan Academic Audience: Origins, Universality, and Enforcement Generally and in Particular Considering Types and Bases for the Exercise of Justice." It was a video-linked presentation in Washington, D.C. & Nairobi, Kenya. Professor Edwards served as a marshall at the law school and university commencement ceremonies in May.

From May 31 to June 20, Frank Emmert hosted the first annual Summer Institute in American and Comparative Law at IU McKinney. Students from Mexico and the Middle East participated in a number of courses and extracurricular activities.As an inbound summer study abroad program, this new initiative has already garnered inquiries from several potential partner institutions for 2016. The dates for this year have been tentatively set for mid-June to mid-July. Details will be announced shortly.

In summer 2015, Professor Emmert also taught International Commercial Arbitration for McKinney students from May to July.

On June 26, Professor Emmert conducted a workshop on "Global Failure of Justice Systems - Causes and Consequences" for the participants at the annual Tulane Legislative Drafting Institute in New Orleans. As it is the case for most of his publications and presentations, the text can be accessed via https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Frank_Emmert2. On this website, interested readers can also find information on Emmert's latest publications, including a collection of documents on WTO Law, and the first volume in a series on Quality Management in Legal Education around the world.

In the fall semester, Professor Emmert used for the first time his new casebook on European Union Law (West Publishing), co-authored with Roger Goebel (Fordham), Eleanor Fox (NYU), George Bermann (Columbia), Jeffrey Atik (Loyola LA), and Damien Gerard (Louvain).

In addition to teaching "EU Law Foundations" and "International Business Transactions (IBT)" at McKinney, Professor Emmert opened a new McKinney initiative with Université Saint- Ésprit de Kaslik (USEK) in Jounieh, Lebanon, and taught "IBT" and "WTO Law" for the first class of this program. The students will be joining McKinney for the second half of their program from January to July 2016 and, after successful completion of the requirements of both universities, will be awarded the Master of Laws (LL.M.) degree of both universities.

On November 9 and 10, Professor Emmert attended the annual Jean Monnet Conference on European Integration in Brussels. On November 17, he hosted a breakfast meeting for students and staff from Portugal and Brazil in honor of a visit of the Portuguese Ambassador to IU. Finally, during Thanksgiving break, Professor Emmert visited Tec de Monterrey, the leading private university in Mexico, and taught a short course on International Commercial Arbitration on their campus in Chihuahua.

John Hill participated in a community discussion on public accommodation issues surrounding the proposal to expand Indiana's civil rights law to include sexual orientation and gender identity. The event, titled "Do I Have to Bake You a Cake? A Conversation about Civil Rights and Religious Liberty," took place on November 18 at the Christian Theological Seminary's Shelton Auditorium, in Indianapolis. Professor Hill's latest book, After the Natural Law: How the Classical Worldview Supports Our Modern Moral and Political Ideals (Ignatius Press), will appear in print in February. The book traces the development of western philosophy from classical to modern times and argues that our most important moral and political principles—freedom, responsibility, equality and human dignity—are incoherent without a foundation in natural law.

Max Huffman published "Teaching Antitrust Online," in the CPI Antitrust Chronicle, (June 2015) and "Online Teaching Grows Up—And Heads to Law School," in the Indiana Law Review, October 2015. Professor Huffman co-presented (with Professor Cynthia Adams, Dr. Jeani Young, and Tom Janke) on McKinney Law Online at the Computer Assisted Legal Instruction Conference in Denver, Colorado, in June 2015, and presented on "Opportunities for Collaboration in Corporate and Commercial

Professor Emerita Kinney's Book Published by Cambridge Press

Professor Emerita Eleanor Kinney's latest book, "The Affordable Care Act and Medicare in Comparative Context," has been published by Cambridge University Press.

Professor Emerita Kinney is the Hall Render Professor of Law Emerita and founding director of the law school's Hall Center for Law and Health.

"I have been studying Medicare since the 1970s when I was in law school," Kinney said of her reasons for researching and writing the book. "It's a tremendous government program that has help millions of people in countless ways. No longer is the medical care the responsibility of the children of the elderly. That fact has enormous implications for the education of younger generations and so forth. It's a great program and now that I am a Medicare beneficiary, I can't say enough good things about it."

Dean Klein Receives Presidential Citation at Indiana State Bar Association Meeting

Dean Andrew R. Klein received a Presidential Citation during the Indiana State Bar Association's annual meeting on October 7 in French Lick, Indiana.

Dean Klein served as vice chair of the ISBA's Legal Education Conclave, held in June at Inlow Hall. According to the State Bar, Dean Klein was honored for his work, along with conclave chair Ted Waggoner, for "the Herculean task of planning curriculum and recruiting faculty, work that often went home with them on weeknights and on weekends, more so than most other ISBA volunteer responsibilities." The ISBA states "this task requires visionary perceptiveness of which national and international trends to feature and which thought leaders to recruit across a multitude of judicial, legal education and legal service environments—and these two did an exceptional job at both. The report coming from this Conclave will likely help direct future initiatives of the Association."

Robert Katz recently published the article "Indiana's Flawed Religious Freedom Law," 49 Ind. L. Rev. 37 (2015). In addition to this publication, he presented his paper "Is Obergfell Publicly Reasonable?" at the Symposium on Religion and the Law held at Florida International University School of Law on October 23, 2015.

In October, Professor and Dean Emeritus Norman Lefstein was the featured speaker at the Annual Public Defense Management Seminar in Sunriver, Oregon, sponsored by the Oregon Criminal Defense Lawyers Association and the Oregon Office of Public Defense Services. His remarks were titled, "Securing Reasonable Caseloads: What Are They? How Do We Define Them? And What Should Be the Future of Public Defense"? In November, Professor Lefstein spoke at the annual meeting of the American Society of Criminology in Washington, D.C., during which he addressed the methodology for studying public defense caseloads.

Catherine Lemmer had two articles published: Library Finances 101: Developing Workplace Financial Literacy in Your Staff and Institution, C. & Undergraduate Libr. 325-342 (2015) DOI: 10.1080/10691316.2015.1062739 (with Sara Sampson); and Using Competitive Intelligence Instruction To Develop Practice-Ready Legal Professionals, 34 L. Ref. Serv. Q. 268-292 (2015) DOI: 10.1080/0270319X.2015.1102024. These articles were the basis of two presentations, the first in July, where she spoke on "Library Finances 101: Developing Workplace Financial Literacy in Your Staff and Institution," at the American Association of Law Libraries Annual Conference, with Sara Sampson, in Philadelphia. She also presented on "Using Competitive Intelligence Instruction to Develop Practice Skills in Law Students," at the Ohio Regional Association of Law Libraries Annual Conference in Fort Wayne in October.

(Mark Graber, Sandy Levinson, and Mark Tushnet, eds., 2015). He also published "The Legacy of Chief Justice Fortas," at 18 Green Bag 2d. 261 (2015). Professor Magliocca delivered two presentations in October. He presented on "The Bill of Rights as a Constitutional Construction," at the American Society of Legal Historians Annual Meeting on October 30, 2015, and on "Recent U.S. Supreme Court Cases," for a continuing legal education program for legislators and staff at the Indiana House of Representatives on October 26, 2015.

Deborah McGregor gave a presentation, along with colleague Joel Schumm, at the 2015 Central States Legal Writing Conference in St. Louis in September. The topic of the presentation was "Point/Counterpoint: Alternative Approaches to Oral Research Reports." In addition, the second edition of Professor McGregor's text, The Guide to U.S. Legal Analysis and Communication, co-authored with Cynthia Adams, was published over the summer.

Jim Nehf recently published two book chapters: Protecting Privacy With "Heightened" Notice and Choice in a Research Handbook on Electronic Commerce Law (J. Rothchild, ed., 2015), and Security Interests in Timber and Minerals: Delicate Balance Between Real Estate Law and the Uniform Commercial Code in the commercial law treatise that he updates and edits each year, Secured Transactions Under the Uniform Commercial Code (published by LEXIS-NEXIS). In June, he traveled to Amsterdam to present a paper on Internet privacy at the biennial meeting of the International Association of Consumer Law, where he serves on the group's Executive Board. Professor Nehf also completed a new online course on Payment Systems, which will be available to students for the first time in the Spring 2016 semester.

Xuan-Thao Nguyen gave fifteen presentations during the summer and fall months. In May, she spoke on "Intellectual Property Financing," for a workshop for lawyers and bankers sponsored by the Vietnam Banks Association and World Bank/IFC, Hanoi & HCMC. She also spoke on "From the Ambience of Fast Food Restaurant to the Look & Feel of Websites," at I*P Issues from a Comparative Law Perspective: Protection of Product Design, Look & Feel & 3D Trademarks and the Intersectionality of Protection under Trademark, Copyright, Design & Unfair Competition Laws*. The event was co-organized by the University of Washington School of Law and Jiao Tong University School of Law, May 27, 2015, Shanghai, China. On May 28, she spoke on the topic, "Functionality Doctrine and Non-Traditional Trademarks," at an IP Conference exclusively for the IP Tribunal of China Supreme People's Court and Invited Academics, sponsored by the China IP Law Society, in Shanghai, China.

On May 29, she gave two presentations at the Conference on Competition Law: Regulating Inappropriate Online Behaviors, co-organized by the University of Washington School of Law, East China Univ. of Political Science and Law, China Supreme People's Court, and China IP Law Society. She spoke on "When Keywords Collide with Trademarks in the United States," and "Domain Names in the Current Legal Cyberspace."

On May 30, she presented at the Shanghai University of Political Science and Law's International Law School on the topics, "Payments: Law of Merchants, Letter of Credit and Negotiable Instruments," and "Sales of Goods, UCC and Legal Realism." She spoke at the same institution in June on the topics, "Dynamic Development of U.S. Intellectual Property," (June 2); Payments: Credit Cards, Debit Cards, Wechat and Mobile Payment Platforms," (June 6) and "Financing Innovation: Think Like Startups, Act Like Startups, Challenges to Traditional Banking," (June 8). She also spoke on "Copyrights, Software and Technology Lending: How Traditional Banking Can Help Innovation," at the Fudan University School of Law in Shanghai on June 7.

On September 19, Professor Nguyen spoke on a Vietnamese American Law Professors Panel for the NCVAA Conference in Boston. In November, she gave three presentations at the Shanghai University of Political Science and Law School of Law: a lecture on "Terms of Use and Privatization of Rights in Social Media," on November 23; a lecture on "Law and Common Sense: A Closer Look at Decisional Law and the Uniform Commercial Code," on November 24 and a talk on "Entertainment Law: From Copyrights, Trademarks, Rights of Publicity to Contracts" on November 25.

Professor Nguyen's publications include, Annual Update for the treatise Licensing Intellectual Property (with Gomulkiewicz and Conway) (Bloomberg BNA 2015); the Annual Update for the treatise Intellectual Property Taxation (with Maine) (Bloomberg BNA 2015), and "The Intersection of Trademarks, Licenses and Bankruptcy: Ending Uncertainties in the Law," in The Law and Practice of Trademark Transactions (edited by Irene Calboli and Jacques de Werra) (Elgar Publishing 2015).

Professor Nguyen was appointed to serve on the Dallas Museum of Arts' Director Search Committee. She served as a Fulbright Discipline Reviewer to review 2015 law applications for the Fulbright, and also served on the Executive Committee, of the IP Section of the Indianapolis Bar Association. Additionally, she recruited outside academic reviewers and served on the SJD Dissertation Committee for Apinya Bunditwuthisagul in the fall of 2015.

David Orentlicher currently serves as the President of the American Society for Law, Medicine, and Ethics. He recently published "Presumed Consent to Organ Donation" in Nudging Health: Health Law and Behavioral Economics (Cohen, Lynch & Robertson, eds., John Hopkins University Press, 2015). His discussion of "Societal Disregard for the Needs of the Infertile"

Fran Quigley authored a series of articles on the access to medicines movement for publications including Foreign Affairs, the Harvard University Health and Human Rights Journal and the National Catholic Reporter. He also wrote an article for The Nation on the Haiti cholera epidemic, and continues to write monthly columns for The Indianapolis Star on human rights issues. He delivered the keynote addresses for Anderson University's Constitution Day celebration ("Is There a Constitutional Right to the Basic Necessities of Life?") and the Masarachia Scholars Annual Dinner ("The Road Already Traveled: Lessons for 2015 Worker Advocates from 1935"), and spoke in support of his book, If We Can Win Here: The New Front Lines of the Labor Movement at an IU McKinney Faculty Book Talk and on the WFYI radio "No Limits" program.

Florence Wagman Roisman was one of ten professors honored with the Elizabeth Hurlock Beckman Award for inspiring students to benefit the community. She was nominated for this by Emily Benfer ('05), Clinical Professor of Law and Director of the Health Justice Project at the Beazley Institute for Health law and Policy at the Loyola University Chicago School of Law. The Award carries with it a $25,000 grant.

Professor Roisman had some involvement with the Supreme Court's decision in Texas Dept. of Housing and Community Affairs v. Inclusive Communities Project (ICP). (Among other things, she is a member of the ICP Board.) Professor Roisman published a short article about the decision ("The Power of the Supreme Court's Decision in The Fair Housing Case, TDHCA v. ICP," available at www.prrac.org/pdf/JulyAugust2015PRRACRoisman.pdf) and discussed that decision at the law school's Constitution Day Continuing Legal Education Program reviewing the U.S. Supreme Court's last Term.

Professor Roisman also published an article, "Mortgages Held by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac May Not be Foreclosed by Non-Judicial Foreclosure, in 29 Probate and Property 11 (Sept./Oct. 2015).

Joel Schumm received the Indianapolis Bar Association's President's Award for Service to the Profession, November 18, 2015, for "dedication in creating and sustaining" the Indiana Appellate Institute, which prepares advocates for oral arguments before the Indiana Supreme Court and Indiana Court of Appeals, described as an "extraordinary benefit to our members and the legal community."

Since January 2014, Professor Schumm has been the Reporter for the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers' (NACDL) Federal Indigent Defense Task Force. The Task Force released its comprehensive report, Federal Indigent Defense 2015: The Independence Imperative, on September 8, 2015.

He was a presenter on the topic, "A Look Back on 2014 and Ahead to 2015," for the Marion County Public Defender Agency, July 10, 2015, in Indianapolis.

He was a co-presenter (with Professor Debby McGregor), on the subject, "Point/Counterpoint: Alternative Approaches to Oral Research Reports," for the Central States Legal Writing Conference, September 26, at St. Louis University School of Law, St. Louis, Missouri. He also presented at the Juvenile Delinquency Case Law Update, sponsored by the Indiana Public Defender Council, on October 16, in Indianapolis, and finally, Professor Schumm was a co-presenter (with James Bell), for the Criminal Law Update, ICLEF Webinar, on November 17 in Indianapolis.

Frank Sullivan, Jr., authored the third in an annual series of articles reflecting on his experiences as a Justice on the Indiana Supreme Court. "A Look Back: Developing Indiana Law; Post-Bench Reflections of an Indiana Supreme Court Justice; Selected Developments in Indiana Juvenile Justice Law (1993-2012)," 48 Ind. L. Rev. 1541 (2015), followed articles on state constitutional law and state administrative law published in 2014 and 2013, respectively. He also authored an article in the law review's annual Indiana law update, "Banking, Business, and Contract Law," 48 Ind. L. Rev. 1195 (2015).

By Order of the Indiana Supreme Court dated June 2, 2015, Professor Sullivan was appointed a member of the Court's Commercial Court Working Group, charged with recommending guidelines for establishing and administering commercial courts in Indiana. The Working Group met on June 26, August 7, and September 8 and then submitted a report with recommendations to the Court on September 30. The report gave special recognition to Professor Sullivan for "his valuable work in drafting some of the more problematic portions of the proposed Administrative Rule 20."

Professor Sullivan made a presentation entitled "Are new UPL cases related to old UPL cases – Or are they something completely different?" as part of a panel on the topic "The 'Practice of Law' and the Future of UPL: Holding the Line or Evolving with the Times?" (with Mark Dubois, President, Connecticut State Bar Association; Angie L. Ordway, Staff Attorney, Indiana Supreme Court Disciplinary Commission; and Selina S. Thomas, Senior Counsel, Client Protection, Center for Professional Responsibility, American Bar Association), at the Indiana Legal Education Conclave, June 27.

As Commissioner from Indiana, Professor Sullivan attended the Annual Meeting of the Uniform Law Commission (formerly National Conference of Commissioners of Uniform State Laws), in Williamsburg, VA, July 12-15. As a Commissioner and Secretary of the Indiana Business Law Survey Commission, he participated in commission meetings in Indianapolis, on July 14, September 22, and November 4. He also attended the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Appellate Judges Education Institute in Chicago on August 2.

As an Adviser to the "Restatement of the Law (Third) Torts: Liability for Economic Harm" project of the American Law Institute" and "Principles of Election Law: Resolution of Election Disputes" projects of the American Law Institute, Professor Sullivan participated in Joint Meetings of Advisers and Members Consultative Groups which met in Philadelphia on September 10 and 11, respectively.

On September 15, Professor Sullivan made a presentation entitled "Visiting Runnymede: The American Bar Association's Commemoration of the 800th Anniversary of the Magna Carta," at a Symposium on the Magna Carta and the Rule of Law held at Indiana State University and sponsored by the Terre Haute Bar Association, the United States District Court for the Southern District of Indiana, the historical Society of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana. On September 16, he made a presentation for the Annual Indiana Law Survey CLE program on the topic, "Banking, Business, and Contract Law." And on September 17, he joined former Indiana Chief Justice Randall T. Shepard in a joint presentation entitled "Selected Topics in Indiana Constitutional Law" at the Indianapolis American Inn of Court.

On October 28 and November 30, Professor Sullivan delivered two special lectures at the law school on "Justice Brandeis" and "State ex rel. Metro-Transit Authority: The Case that had Everything," respectively. On November 16, he organized and moderated a special program commemorating the 40th anniversary of the enactment of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. This statute was enacted by Congress in 1975 to ensure that children with disabilities have the opportunity to receive a free appropriate public education, just like other children. It provides children with disabilities the legal right to a special education.

Professor Sullivan served on a panel on the topic "Making Your Appellate Motions Count" (with H. Thomas Watson, Judge Albert Diaz, and H. Frank Gibbard) at the 2015 Summit for Appellate Judges, Lawyers & Staff Attorneys, Appellate Judges Education Institute, Washington, D.C., on November 14.

Nicolas Terry recently published "Navigating the Incoherence of Big Data Reform Proposals," 43(1) Journal of Law, Medicine and Ethics 44 (2015), and "Mobile Health: Assessing the Barriers," 147 (5) CHEST 1429-1434 (2015). His article "Innovation in Mobile Health Impacts Law" appeared in the July 2015 issue of The Indiana Lawyer.

In addition to his recent publications, Professor Terry has delivered several major presentations, including "The Law of Wearables" at the Doctors 2.0 & You Conference, which was held in Paris on June 4-5, 2015. In July 2015, he presented his work "Epigenetics and the Law" in Vienna at the International Academy of Law and Mental Health 34th International Congress on Law and Mental Health. At this conference, he also served as a presenter and panel organizer for the panel "Mental Health Exceptionalism." He shared his expertise with the GME House Staff Forum of the Indiana University School of Medicine during a Health Law Q&A session on August 11, 2015. During the month of October, Professor Terry delivered two presentations in Amsterdam. He discussed "Diagnosing Triggers of Privacy Turbulence Using Communication Privacy Management Theory" at the Amsterdam Privacy Conference, and he presented his paper "Health Data Protection, Regulatory Turbulence and Arbitrage," at the Berkeley Law and the University of Amsterdam Privacy Law Scholars Conference.

Professor Terry continues to serve as a member of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services FACA Health IT Policy Committee Consumer Workgroup. His weekly podcast, The Week in Health Law, can be found at TWIHL.com.

On September 17, Carlton Waterhouse was the keynote speaker for the American Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee Judges Night in Detroit, Michigan, which had over 60 state and federal judges in attendance. On September 28, Professor Waterhouse lectured at Hokkaido University in Sapporo Japan on "Reparations: The Social Dominance Problem." Later that week he travelled to South Korea to present the same topic at Jeju National University in Jeju South Korea.

In September, Professor Waterhouse entered into a contract with Cambridge University Press to author Social Dominance and the Supreme Court, with Professor Carla Pratt of the Penn State University Dickinson School of Law, a book examining the role of the Court in maintaining American racial hierarchy.

Fran Watson presented "Freeing the Innocent, Righting Wrongful Convictions," in the Wynne Courtroom on March 26, 2015, in conjunction with the Law School's Graduate Studies Lecture Series. On April 11, Professor Watson was honored at the 7th Annual Public Interest Recognition Dinner, presented by IU McKinney School of Law and Equal Justice Works. In June, at the law school, Professor Watson participated as a teacher in the inaugural six-day Summer Leadership & Law Academy, serving to introduce diverse undergraduate students to the study of law. This Fall term 2015, Fran Watson is assisting with the Diplomacy Lab Project, studying public defender systems in various countries. Professor Watson also moderated a roundtable at the October 6, CPLI Summit: Leaders Collaborating to Advance Positive School Discipline.

Jim White conducted a review of the University of Mississippi Law School program at the University of Cambridge in July. He also was reelected to the Board of Trustees of Butler University.

From May 15 to June 14, Tom Wilson served as resident professor in Beijing for the 2015 Chinese Law Summer Program (CLSP). The program included J.D. students from six U.S. law schools plus LL.M. students from Colombia and Saudi Arabia. In 2015, the CLSP completed its twenty-eighth year in China. Since 1998, the CLSP has been held at the Renmin University of China Law School, the number one ranked law school in China. Law schools at Boston College, University of Minnesota, University of Oklahoma, and University of Tennessee are formal affiliates of the CLSP and send their students to IU McKinney's program. Professor Wilson is the Director of the CLSP.

On June 1, Professor Wilson co-directed (with Renmin University professor Meng Yanbei) the sixth annual International Forum for Law Students (Forum). The goal of the Forum is to enable law students from around the world to research a topic relating to a selected theme and to gather at Renmin University of China Law School in Beijing to present their research to an audience of law professors, law students, lawyers, judges, and government officials. The theme of the 2015 Forum was The Relationship of Government and Markets in the Perspective of Law. Nineteen students from eleven countries participated in the 2015 Forum, including two students from the IU McKinney School of Law.

From June 16 through June 30, Professor Wilson arranged externships for law students at two of China's leading law firms—Jia Yuan Law Office and DeHeng Law Firm. The externships enable U.S. students to contribute to work on cases and to observe Chinese lawyers in action.

From July 20 to August 1, Professor Wilson directed the fourth annual Summer Program in American Law for students from Sun Yat-sen University in Guangzhou, China. The program consists of in-class instruction on American law, law-related field trips, and cultural field trips. Students met with Judge William T. Lawrence at the U.S. District Court, with Justice Steven H. David at the Indiana Supreme Court, with Lt. Governor Sue Ellsperman at the Office of the Lt. Governor, with Attorney General Greg Zeoller at the Office of the Attorney General, and with Senator Brandt Hershman in the Senate Chamber. The students also spent a day at the corporate headquarters of Eli Lilly & Company as guests of David McAvoy, General Counsel for Emerging Markets, and John F. Kukelman, General Counsel for Elanco.

From September 5 to September 12, Professor Wilson directed the seventh annual Summer Program in American Law for students from Faculdades Integradas Espirito Santenses (FAESA) in Vitoria, Brazil. Like the Sun Yat-sen program, the FAESA program includes in-class instruction, law-related field trips, and cultural field trips. In addition, FAESA students and faculty held a conference at Wabash College entitled Not on Our Watch: Battling Corruption for the Development of a Democratic State in Brazil.

From November 23 to November 27, Professor Wilson travelled to Norway to make presentations about the Chinese legal system and to formally welcome the University of Bergen Faculty of Law as the fifth affiliate of IU McKinney School of Law's Chinese Law Summer Program.

Each year, Professor Wilson brings visiting scholars from China to the IU McKinney School of Law. In the summer and fall semester of 2015, two visiting professors were in residence: Zhou Chao, Associate Professor, China Agricultural University Department of Law and Liu Xiaodan, Legal Language Specialist, in Qindao. Since 2009, Professor Wilson has hosted twenty-three visiting scholars and seven visiting professors from China.

Diana Winters has published two new articles: "Inappropriate Referral: The Use of Primary Jurisdiction in Food Labeling Litigation," 41 Am. J. L. & Med. 240 (2015), and "Intractable Delay and the Need to Amend the Petition Provisions of the FDCA," 90 IND. L.J. 1047 (2015). In addition to these articles, her blog entry "The FDA's Determination on Artificial Trans Fat: A Long Time Coming," was featured in Health Affairs Blog on June 23, 2015.

Professor Winters' recent presentations include "Primary Jurisdiction and Health Law Issues," which was featured during the ASLME Annual Health Law Professors Conference at St. Louis University School of Law in June 2015, as well as "The Benefits of Regulatory Friction in Shaping Policy," which she delivered on October 30, 2015, at the Georgetown Law Center's Food and Drug Law Journal Symposium on Constitutional Challenges to the Regulation of Food, Drugs, Medical Devices, Cosmetics, and Tobacco Products.

Lawyers Without Rights Exhibit

The Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law hosted the exhibit, "Lawyers Without Rights: Jewish Lawyers in Germany Under the Third Reich," April 20-28 in the Ruth Lilly Law Library.

The idea for the exhibit was conceived when, in 1998, an Israeli lawyer asked the regional bar of Berlin for a list of Jewish lawyers whose licenses had been revoked by the Nazi regime. This request resulted in the bar deciding not only to compile the list of names, but also to try to find out what happened to the lawyers. Some were able to leave the country after the Nazis came to power, but many were incarcerated or murdered. This research was transformed into an exhibit, with other regional bars adding their own information.

The exhibit in Indianapolis was co-sponsored by the American Bar Association and the German Federal Bar. Local sponsors, in addition to the law school, were Barnes & Thornburg, the Indianapolis JCC, the Honorary Consul of the Federal Republic of Germany, the American Council on Germany, The Circle: Jews, Germans & Hoosiers in Conversation, the Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council, the Foundation for Lutheran Child & Family Services, and the Max Kade German-American Center at IUPUI. ❖

IU McKinney Hosts Conclave on Legal Education

On June 26-27, the Indiana State Bar Association presented the Conclave on Legal Education, a program that occurs every five years and brings together members of the academic community, practicing attorneys and judges from throughout Indiana to discuss issues of importance to the profession. IU McKinney Dean Andy Klein was vice chair of the planning committee for the 2015 Conclave.

A variety of topics were covered, including sessions on experiential learning, rural access to justice, and wellness issues. The program ended on Saturday with a "Call to Action," led by Indiana Supreme Court Justice Mark Massa, '89. ❖

Bishop, '82 and Rose, '90, Honored as "Women of Influence"

Two IU McKinney alumnae were among those honored on November 5 as "Women of Influence" by the Indianapolis Business Journal.

MaryEllen Bishop, '82, was honored not only for her legal career as a partner at Cohen Garelick & Glazier, but also for her work as vice chair of the Indiana University Board of Trustees. She was initially elected to the post in 2010, and re-elected in 2013. She's also served as chairwoman of the IU Alumni Association, co-chairwoman of the Planned Giving Committee for the IU School of Medicine, a member of the IU Athletics Committee, a member of the board of visitors of the Robert H. McKinney School of Law, a member of the steering committee of the Colloquium for Women of IU, and on the board of the IU Foundation and the Women's Philanthropy Leadership Council.

Marya Rose, '90, is vice president and chief administrative officer at Cummins. She was honored for her work with one of the biggest entities in the state's business community, and the company's stand against the Religious Freedom Restoration Act. The manufacturer's stand against the measure, and against bans on same-sex marriage, goes beyond the state's borders. In 2014, Rose testified against a proposed constitutional amendment that would have banned same-sex marriage in Indiana. Rose and the company fought similar legislation in Minnesota in 2012, and fought against Proposition 8 in Califorina. She's also board chair for Planned Parenthood of Indiana and Kentucky.

The program began with a welcome that included remarks by Shaun Healey Clifford, '85, a magna cum laude graduate of IU McKinney.

Shane Evans, '15, Elected Mayor of Delphi

Shane Evans, '15, was elected mayor of Delphi, Indiana, in November. At age 25, he's one of the youngest candidates ever to be elected to the mayor's office in Indiana. He ran as an independent. Evans said in a news story published November 3 in the Lafayette Journal & Courier that his first goal is to continue to upgrade the city. He hopes to put a capital improvement plan in place that will address city streets, alleys, and sidewalks.

Evans is a 2008 graduate of Delphi Community High School, a 2012 graduate of Wabash College and a 2015 graduate of Indiana University's Robert H. McKinney School of Law.

"It took a second to hit me," Evans said, of being elected. "I'm just thankful to the people of Delphi."

IU McKinney Tops Law Schools on State Super Lawyer List

IU McKinney leads the pack with the most alumni chosen for the 2015 Indiana Super Lawyers List. A whopping 363 IU McKinney alumni made the 2015 list, which is 44 percent of the total. http://lawschools.superlawyers.com/top-10-law-schools/indiana

It's the latest in a long list of accolades that the law school has raked in of late. IU McKinney was named a "Best Value Law School" by The National Jurist, was ranked in the top five law schools in the Midwest by Lawyers of Color magazine, and was noted as being a "pipeline to Congress" in a story by the National Law Journal.

In Memoriam

Professor Emeritus Ken Stroud Professor Emeritus Kenneth M. Stroud passed away on August 17, 2015, at the age of 80. A professor at IU McKinney School of Law for 26 years, he taught several generations of alumni in the areas of criminal law, evidence and appellate practice.

On the occasion of Stroud's retirement in 1999, his colleague, Professor Emeritus James W. Torke, wrote a moving tribute to him. The following is an excerpt from the tribute: "Ken Stroud is a consummate teacher. I have already reported the regard his students had for him. But beyond this, he is a teacher for all who will listen. Those of his colleagues and friends who read this tribute will understand what I mean when I say that he was my best teacher, that much of what I might have achieved as a teacher and scholar was built on lessons I learned from Ken Stroud. His art is made up of three parts: hard work and thorough preparation; intellectual rigor and honesty; and, perhaps his rarest gift, an ability to engage others in conversation as supple, clear, and lively as a spring stream. I have said that his teaching began with hard work and thorough preparation. I have known no other colleague who, right up to his retirement, put so much effort into preparation for each class. I experienced this ethic over the many summers in which other colleagues and I joined Ken in the study of legal philosophy. In those summers, I learned from him what it takes to gain a full and honest understanding of a text. The preparation, care, and discipline that he brought to this task became our prescription and rule. As a student and a thinker, he was adventurous but never satisfied with an easy understanding or superficial chatter. To every topic, he brought a broadly-informed mind that was without ostentation, an intellectual rigor free of rigidity, and a seriousness of purpose without self-importance. He always, in a favorite phrase of his, 'stayed on the merits.' Old friends have often heard him invoke his 'spiral theory' of thought. To my understanding, the spiral theory is a way of looking at the world with a lawyerly eye: as soon as you come to grasp an argument from one side, you must turn and attack it from the other, and so on in an ever-rising spiral of insight. Thought never comes to rest."

In Memoriam

Keith Donnelly, '04 Keith Donnelly, 59, of Zionsville, passed away unexpectedly on the evening of September 26, 2015. He was born in Cincinnati, Ohio to Robert Donnelly and Claire Kortekamp Donnelly. Keith was a graduate of Brebeuf Jesuit Preparatory School in Indianapolis where he was a varsity swimmer and leader in student government. He received his bachelor of science degree from the United States Military Academy, West Point, a masters degree in International Relations from The Ohio State University, and his Juris Doctorate from Indiana University.

He served his country for 23 years as a commissioned officer in the United States Army, including time in combat during The Gulf War as part of Operation Desert Storm. Keith earned numerous awards and decorations in recognition of his military service, including the Bronze Star, Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal, and the Army Commendation Medal, and honorably retired from duty at the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Keith was later given the honor of serving on Senator Dick Lugar's Military Academy Merit Selection Committee.

Kiefer Mendenhall, '71 Born in Indianapolis, Kiefer Mendenhall graduated from Wabash College and Indiana University McKinney School of Law. He left a banking career in 1971 when he and his family moved to Aspen. Once described by the New York Times as "one of Aspen's lovable eccentrics", he owned the Wax & Wicks gift shop for 20 years and created Aspen Mulling Spices. An Aspen Music Festival devotee, he was the first storeowner to invite student musicians and faculty to perform on the mall. He is survived by his wife Mary, children Allyson (Eliot) and Preston (Zhenya), four grandchildren, and sister Judy (Wendell) Shiffler.

Richard A. "Dick" Stark, '48 Richard A. Stark of Vero Beach, Florida, died on October 6, 2015, peacefully at home from a long standing ailment. He graduated from DePauw University in Greencastle, Indiana in 1943, served in the U.S. Navy as Lieutenant, junior grade, from 1943-1946, graduated from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration in 1947 and from Indiana University School of Law in 1948. He began the practice of law with the New York law firm of Milbank, Tweed, Hadley & McCloy and served on its top management board for more than 25 years.

Remembering Marilyn 'Jay' Wright Members of the family of Marilyn 'Jay' Wright gathered with faculty and staff on November 5 in the Ruth Lilly Law Library for a memorial service. Jay retired in May 2014 after serving for 44 years with libraries on the IUPUI campus. She passed away on August 12, 2015.

Jay served for seven years at the Blake Street Library on campus before moving to the law school library in 1977. She became a fixture at the Ruth Lilly Law Library, where she served in a number of capacities, including as a circulation assistant, interlibrary loan assistant, and administrative assistant. She won the IUPUI Gerald L. Bepko Staff Council Spirit Award in 2000.

Among the speakers during the memorial were Chancellor Emeritus Gerald L. Bepko, and Professor of Law Emerita Judith Ford Anspach. Both recalled the positive impact Jay made on the lives of those she came into contact with, and how much they appreciated her friendship.

DEAN'S REPORT 2014–2015

The Dean's Report recognizes our amazing alumni and friends who have so generously financially supported the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law during the 2014-2015 fiscal year. Philanthropic support allows funding for student recruitment, scholarships, experiential learning opportunities, and faculty development. Because of our generous donors, we are able to offer a high-quality, well-rounded legal education to our students. Thank you for making an investment in today's students as they prepare to become tomorrow's leaders.

Harrison Society 2014-2015 Donors

The Harrison Society at the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law includes those donors with cumulative gifts totaling $100,000 or more. With such generosity, these donors have been instrumental in providing outstanding educational opportunities for our students. The society is named in memory of former U.S. President Benjamin Harrison, a trustee of the original Indiana Law School, and namesake of the Benjamin Harrison Law School, both predecessor schools of the law school. On behalf of our current and future students—we offer a heartfelt thank you.

Recognition of Funds 2014-2015

Established funds at the law school help to support and advance the work of our various centers, programs, and clinics on projects and initiatives that enhance the curriculum for our students, improve the law, understand its complexities, and disseminate a better understanding of the law to those external to the law school. We would like to recognize the following donors for their support of these listed funds.

Birch E. Bayh Annual Lecture

Simon Property Group and friends of Birch E. Bayh created the Birch E. Bayh Annual Lecture Endowment to support an annual lecture at the law school in honor of the former U.S. Senator. The lecture series focuses on issues of importance to Senator Bayh throughout his long and distinguished career in government.

Eugene N. and Marian C. Beesley Fund

The Eugene N. and Marian C. Beesley Fund was established in 1973 to support the Ruth Lilly Law Library. Mr. Beesley served as president and board chairman of Eli Lilly and Company. He was the first non-Lilly family member to serve as president. Income from the fund is used to finance acquisitions for the law library.

Ona Chambers Fund

This fund was established in 1974 by the Ona Chambers Trust. Income from this gift is used to purchase art for display at the law school.

Cohen & Malad, LLP Endowed Fund

This fund was established in 2013 by the law firm of Cohen & Malad, LLP and supports student fellowships. The fellowship recipients work on cases involving clients with consumer law through the law school's pro bono partner organizations or through the clinical programs at the school. The fellowship recipients also serve an integral role in the planning and implementation of an annual event that is designed to educate the legal community about topics involving consumer law, mass torts, and class actions.

Alan and Linda Cohen Family Foundation Sports and Entertainment Law Fund

This fund was established in 2011 by the Alan and Linda Cohen Family Foundation, on behalf of Alan H., '73, and Linda M. Cohen, and their daughter Lauren Cohen Edmundson, '05. The fund supports sports and entertainment law programming at the law school.

Faegre Baker Daniels LLP Public Interest Law Fund

The Faegre Baker Daniels LLP Public Interest Law Fund was established to promote pro bono, clinic, and diversity efforts at the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law. Faegre Baker Daniels Public Interest Fellows work with clinical faculty in the Civil Practice, Disability, and Criminal Clinics and with the Innocence Project.

Hall Render Fund for Excellence in the William S. and Christine S. Hall Center for Law and Health

Hall, Render, Killian, Heath & Lyman, P.C. established the Hall Render Fund for Excellence in the William S. and Christine S. Center for Law and Health in 2011 for general support of the Hall Center for Law and Health at the law school.

International Law Indianapolis

This fund was established in 1992 by Swadesh S. Kalsi, retired Senior Counsel of Krieg DeVault and long-time adjunct professor at the law school. The fund supports the study of international law

Timothy J. Kennedy Memorial Moot Court Fund

This fund was created in 2011 by Montross Miller Muller Mendelson & Kennedy in memory of their partner, colleague, and friend of more than 30 years, Timothy J. Kennedy. The fund helps to support the National Professional Responsibility Moot Court Competition hosted by the law school.

Ted B. Lewis Memorial Fund

The Ted B. Lewis Memorial Fund was created in 1991 by Stephen B. Lewis, Kurt W. Lewis, and other friends, family, and colleagues of Ted B. Lewis, '49, principal partner at Lewis & Kappes, formerly known as Lewis Kappes Fuller & Eads. Income from the endowment is used to improve the training of law students in fundamental lawyering skills, supporting programs such as moot court, client counseling, legal writing, and clinical education.

Joseph Maley Memorial Fund

In 2010, the Joseph Maley Foundation established the Joseph Maley Memorial Fund at the law school to support general efforts of the Disability Law Clinic, and in particular, the Clinic's role in serving children.

Barry L. Meadow Endowment Fund

This endowment was established in 1992 by Barry L. Meadow, '75, and is used at the discretion of the Dean to benefit students, faculty, and programs at the law school.

Mark and Stacey Roesler Intellectual Property Law and Innovation Center Fund

This endowed fund was established in 2011 by Mark R. Roesler, '82, and Stacey Whitmore-Roesler to support efforts of the law school's Intellectual Property Law and Innovation Center.

Robert H. Staton Intramural Moot Court Competition

Friends of the late Hon. Robert H. Staton, '55, established an endowment in 2005 to honor their longtime friend and alum of the law school. The fund supports the annual Hon. Robert H. Staton Intramural Moot Court Competition at the law school.

James P. White Endowed Lectureship in Legal Education

The James P. White Lecture on Legal Education was created when Professor White retired in 2000 after 26 years as the Consultant on Legal Education to the American Bar Association. Members of the ABA's Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar and other friends contributed to the establishment of this annual lecture in Professor White's honor at IU McKinney Law, where he has served on the faculty since 1966. Professor White continues to serve as Consultant Emeritus.

James H. and Joan A. Voyles Law Clinic Fund

James H., '68, and Joan A. Voyles established this endowment in 2008 to support the law school's Clinic with preference given to the Criminal Defense Clinic and other clinic activities which involve law students experiencing criminal defense work and representation of clients.

Linda Pence, '74, Receives Spirit of Philanthropy Award

Linda Pence, '74, received the Spirit of Philanthropy Award at the annual awards luncheon and celebration on Tuesday, April 14 at the Indiana Roof Ballroom. Pence was honored for her remarkable support, loyalty, and service. Linda is a 1971 graduate of the IU School of Arts and Sciences and a 1974 graduate of the IU McKinney School of Law. Her significant philanthropic contributions to a scholarship in her late father's name, the Woodrow W. Pence Scholarship, have helped countless IU McKinney School of Law students as they obtain their legal educations. Linda serves as a member of the law school's Board of Visitors and served as co-chair during the IMPACT Campaign. She is a true champion for her alma mater. Linda is a partner at Pence Hensel LLC in Indianapolis and focuses her legal practice on litigation. She is well-known in the legal community and has received many accolades throughout her career as a trial attorney.

Three Generations of the Walters Family Learn Tax Law from One IU McKinney Professor

Meghan Walters is a student at IU McKinney, and found herself in Professor Lawrence A. Jegen's class. No surprise there.

Her father, Robert P. Walters, '88, studied estate and gift tax law with Professor Jegen. Not an unheard of occurrence among IU McKinney alumni.

Where our story becomes a little jaw-dropping is when you consider that Meghan's grandfather, Philip R. Walters, '69, studied income tax, corporate tax, and estate planning with Professor Jegen, as well. This was a scant seven years after Professor Jegen, the Thomas F. Sheehan Professor of Tax Law and Policy, joined the faculty at the law school.

"Wow!" Professor Jegen exclaimed when he learned of the connection. "Three generations! This must be some kind of record!"

The stories her father and grandfather told her about Professor Jegen confirm "that he truly is a man of wit with a great sense of humor," she said. Meghan told Professor Jegen that she wasn't the first "Walter" student he had taught, and said he was delighted at the news.

Meghan's grandfather, Philip, was so taken with tax law that he enrolled in New York University Law's Graduate Tax Program. He served as a trial deputy for the Indiana Attorney General, and maintained a private practice in Indianapolis for 15 years before transitioning into the field of charitable estate planning. Philip has spent 31 years of his career with educational and healthcare charities. He lives in Orlando, Florida, and works as the planned giving director for the Arthritis Foundation.

Robert served as a deputy prosecutor in Marion County before entering private practice, and practiced law for several years before entering the financial services industry. He served in the military reserves, was deployed overseas twice, and was eventually promoted to the rank of colonel. Following his final deployment, he became a defense contractor. He now lives in Tampa, Florida, and works as a pro-

The stories her father and grandfather told her about Professor Jegen confirm "that he truly is a man of wit with a great sense of humor," she said.

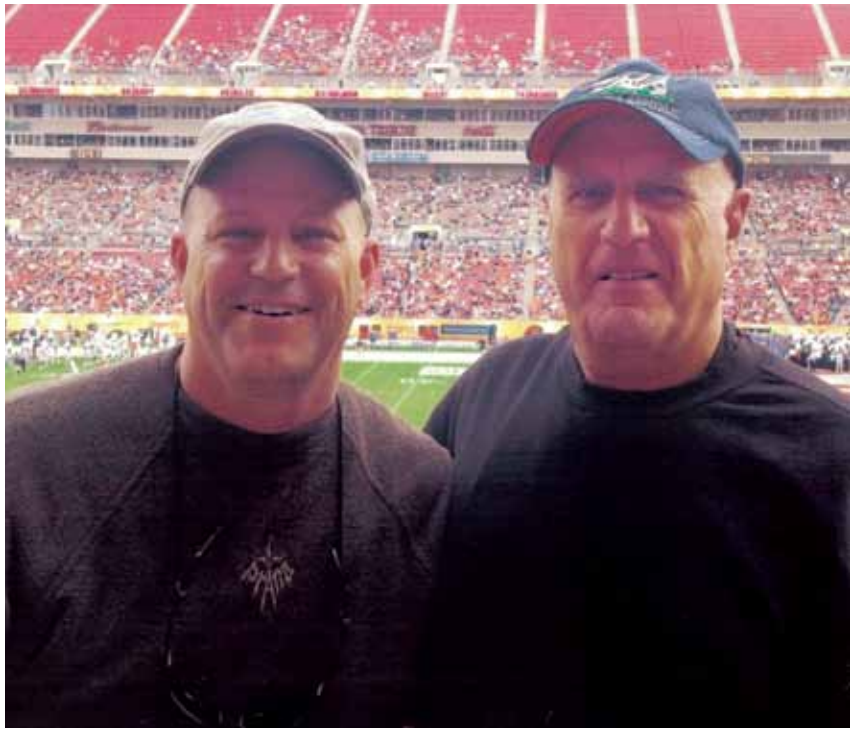
Honoring a Tax Legend

Professor Lawrence A. Jegen III has been a respected member of the law school's faculty for decades. To commemorate his more than 50 years of teaching, the school is establishing the Lawrence A. Jegen III Chair in Tax Law. This endowed chair will allow the law school to recruit another top-notch tax professor. Many generous donors have already made a gift to help fully endow the chair at $1.5 million. But we're not there yet! We only need $300,000 to reach the threshold. Every gift makes a difference! For more information on making a gift to the Jegen Chair, please contact Lisa Schrage, Director of Development Services, at lschrage@iupui.edu or 317-274-1906.



gram manager for General Dynamics.

As far as her career aspirations, Meghan finds she enjoys the area of bioethics, and would like to work at or in connection with a hospital or a medical facility. "I am interested in working with patients, patients' families, and doctors when it comes to end of life decisions for patients, and advocating changes in the law that would afford more structure to those decisions," she said.

Professor Jegen has enjoyed learning that he has taught three generations of lawyers in the Walters family, Meghan said, and she sees that the care he takes with his current crop of law students is what her father and grandfather experienced.

"Specifically, he is very complimentary of our tax class," Meghan said. "He recognizes the potential that we have and he has high expectations for us. He has on several occasions stated that he can tell that we are a class of hard workers, comparable to some of his classes back in the day."

Gerald L. Bepko Endowed Chair 2014-2015

The Gerald L. Bepko Endowed Chair is made possible through the generosity of many alumni and friends of the law school. It is the first chair to be awarded by the law school and is named in honor of campus pioneer and law school champion, Gerald L. Bepko, the Chancellor Emeritus of IUPUI, IU Trustee Professor, and Professor of Law.

Professor Xuan-Thao Nguyen

Professor Xuan-Thao Nguyen joined the faculty in 2014 as the inaugural appointee to the Gerald L. Bepko Chair in Law. Professor Nguyen leads the Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation.

Professorships 2014-2015

Professorships allow the law school to attract and retain a faculty of highly recognized scholars and teachers. We would like to recognize the following donors for their tremendous support to allow such opportunities. The following pages list our professorships holders for the 2014-2015 academic year.

Paul E. Beam Professor of Law

The Paul E. Beam Professorship is made possible by a gift to the law school from the estate of the late Paul E. Beam, Sr., '21. In addition to serving as an adjunct faculty member, Mr. Beam was an Indianapolis attorney who served as general counsel to the Indiana State Bar Association for many years.

Dean Andrew R. Klein

Carl M. Gray Professor of Law

The Carl M. Gray Professorship is named for the late Mr. Gray, a Petersburg, Indiana attorney who made a gift in 1978 to support programs at the law school. Mr. Gray, a former trustee of Indiana University, was recognized during his lifetime for distinguished service by both the Indiana and American Bar Associations.

Professor George E. Edwards

Gerald L. Bepko Professor of Law

In 2007, a professorship reserved for the dean (or former dean) of the law school was spearheaded by, and ultimately named for, Gerald L. Bepko. Bepko is Chancellor Emeritus of IUPUI, as well as a former professor and dean of the law school whose reputation for administrative excellence will benefit the law school community for generations to come.

Dean Emeritus and Professor Gary R. Roberts

John S. Grimes Professor of Law

The John S. Grimes Professorship is made possible thanks to a bequest from the estate of Mr. John S. Grimes. Mr. Grimes was a Professor Emeritus of the law school who taught Property and Trusts and Estates.

Professor Frank Emmert

Professorships 2014-2015

Hall Render Professor of Law

The Hall, Render, Killian, Heath & Lyman Professorship was made possible by a generous gift to the law school from the late William S., '51, and Christine S. Hall. Mr. Hall founded the firm that is the namesake of this endowed professorship in 1967. The firm has focused its practice on health law and is now recognized as one of the nation's preeminent health law firms.

Professor Nicolas P. Terry

William F. Harvey Professor of Law

The William F. Harvey Professorship was established by Michael D. McCormick, '80. The former general counsel of Bindley Western Industries and long-time supporter of the law school funded two endowed professorships with his generous gift.

Professor Florence Wagman Roisman

Lawrence A. Jegen III Professorship

The Lawrence A. Jegen III Professorship was established by Michael D. McCormick, '80. The former general counsel of Bindley Western Industries and long-time supporter of the law school funded two endowed professorships with his generous gift.

Professor R. George Wright

M. Dale Palmer Professor of Law

The M. Dale Palmer Professorship was established in 1997 by the generosity of M. Dale Palmer, '61, a respected attorney and businessman.

Professor Linda A. Kelly

Samuel R. Rosen Professors of Law

The Samuel R. Rosen Professorships are named in honor of the late Judge Rosen, a respected member of Indiana's legal community. The 1933 graduate of Harvard Law School held a number of judicial posts after he moved to Indiana in 1963, including serving as deputy attorney general, an Indiana Supreme Court administrator, and the state's first senior judge accorded "at-large" judicial authority in Indiana. In 1992, Judge Rosen made a gift for the benefit of the law school to honor his Harvard classmate, Cleon H. "Bill" Foust, who served as dean of the school from 1967 until 1973. That gift supports these endowed professorships.

Professor David Orentlicher

Professor Gerard N. Magliocca

Thomas F. Sheehan Professor of Tax Law and Policy

The Thomas F. Sheehan Professorship of Tax Law and Policy was established in 1981 by Thomas F., '68, and Joan M. Sheehan. The professorship is intended to foster important teaching and research on tax law and policy.

Professor Lawrence A. Jegen III

Harold R. Woodard Professor of Law

The Harold R. Woodard Professorship was established in 2004 and awarded for the first time in 2006. Clara Woodard gave the founding gift and named it in memory of her late husband, Harold R. Woodard. Mr. Woodard was a well-known intellectual property attorney and partner at the firm of Woodard, Emhardt, Moriarty, McNett & Henry. He taught for many years as an adjunct professor at the law school.

Professor Nicholas L. Georgakapoulos

Scholarship, Fellowship, and Award Recipients 2014-2015

Privately-funded scholarships and awards at the IU Robert H. McKinney School of Law are an essential element that assists our students in lightening the heavy financial burden of law school. We would like to thank these donors for their tremendous support and for recognizing the importance of scholarships and awards to our students. The selection criteria for these fellowships, scholarships, and awards vary, as some reward strong academic record and others are based on financial need. The following pages list our fellowships, scholarships, and awards for the 2014-2015 academic year and the respective recipients.

Barbara Abrams Scholarship

This scholarship was established in 2005 by Jeffrey, '81, Jerome, and John Abrams in memory of Barbara "Bobbie" K. Abrams. The scholarship supports one annual graduate student with both exceptional academic performance and financial need.

Michelle C. Langdon

Lloyd G. Balfour Scholarship

Funded by a bequest from Lloyd G. Balfour, this scholarship recognizes one student annually for academic achievement with a preference given to members of Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity.

Carrie L. Rau

Banta Scholarship

This scholarship was established in 1978 by a bequest from the estate of George Banta, Jr., and it is named in memory of David D. Banta, the first Dean of the law school.

Jonathan A. Emdin
Samuel E. Swafford

Judge Betty Barteau Scholarship

This scholarship was established by Addison M. Beavers in 1997 to honor his longtime friend, the Hon. Betty Barteau, '65. Judge Barteau is a former judge of the Indiana Court of Appeals, Fifth District, and she has also served as a judicial advisor in Russia. The scholarship is awarded to deserving law students with a preference given to women.

Cora J. Griffin
Ladene I. Mendoza

Mollie E. Bennett Fellowship

Established in 1975 by the estate of Mollie E. Bennett, this fellowship is awarded annually to deserving students who demonstrate a need for financial assistance.

John T. Funk
