A well-deserved Kudos to you, Dr. Haggstrom!

HACKNEY-NORINS SOCIETY MEETS IN NEW ORLEANS

The Hackney-Norins Society gathered at the recent AAD meeting in New Orleans. Members of the Hackney-Norins Board met and new Kampen-Norins Professor and Chair Dr. Elliot Androphy led discussions as to departmental progress. The reception was held right after and it was nice to see many of our friends and colleagues.

Dr. William J. Cron, Dermatologist who practiced in Bloomington, died in March. An Indiana University Department of Dermatology Residency graduate in 1972, Dr. Cron will be remembered as a very able dermatologist who was well-regarded by both his patients and colleagues.

Spotlight

Alison Klenk M.D.

Written by Dr. Jeffrey Travers

Every issue of the Hackney-Norins Newsletter highlights an individual in the Department – this issue highlights Dr. Alison Klenk, Assistant Professor of Clinical Dermatology.

Dr. Klenk is an Indianapolis native, born at Methodist Hospital. The daughter of Allison Transmissions executive Bill and homemaker Becky Klenk, she grew up in the northern part of Indianapolis, and graduated from Brebeuf High School. Always with an interest in science and medicine, following her undergraduate degree with double majors in Biology and Spanish at Duke University, Dr. Klenk went to medical school at Washington University in St. Louis. Dr. Klenk stayed at Washington University for her dermatology residency. Following her residency, she moved to the San Francisco Bay area, where her husband, Dr. Shan Cheng, pursued a fellowship in gastroenterology. Dr. Klenk practiced dermatology for three years at Kaiser Permanente, and garnered valuable experience in practice management, including setting up a procedural dermatology clinic. The family ties were a major reason for Dr. Klenk's return to Indiana, and she chose academic dermatology for the more challenging cases and the stimulating learning environment. Of note, her sister, Ellen Hawkins, works in Administration for IU Health.

Dr. Klenk

Since starting in September 2009, Dr. Klenk has made quite the impact. She not only directs the medical student dermatology rotation, which has blossomed under her guidance, she puts her practice management experience to good use as the Adult Outpatient Center Clinic Director. "My goal is to improve our clinical practice to better allow us to pursue our goals of education and care for underserved populations." And she has!

When not seeing patients, managing the clinics or the medical student rotation, Dr. Klenk enjoys spending time with her family, with husband Dr. Shan Cheng, now a successful gastroenterologist in private practice, and their two children Abigail (age 5), and Alex (age 3). She also enjoys cooking and landscaping. Dr. Klenk states that she is happy to be part of the growth and the new and exciting changes in the Department.

As Dr. Alison Klenk is someone who has been in no small part responsible for making our environment better, we are certainly lucky to have this colleague in our midst!

KUDOS TO:

Second Year resident Dr. Katherine Lee, who was chosen to be a resident member for the National ACGME Resident Review Committee.

Resident Dr. Swetha Kandula, who presented a Gross and Micro presentation at the Annual AAD meeting entitled “Follicular Lymphomatoid Papulosis” with Dr. Mousdicas & Dr. Warren, and was also awarded the FACP (Fellowship of American College of Physicians).

Both FAAD and FACP are worthy of kudos and will need to get her a bigger business card to hold these accumulating titles!

Dr. Dan Spandau who was awarded an IU Biomedical Research Award for $40,000 for his project entitled, ‘Role of aging in skin carcinogenesis’.

Is there any doubt about a role for aging in skin cancer?

Dr. Jeffrey Travers, who will be initiated into the American Dermatological Association this Fall.

Lucky he already has a tuxedo.
